BANDITS TAKE CASH FROM 70 GAS STATIONS

Pair Holds Up Collector Making His Rounds in Downtown Area.

MORE THAN $5,000 TAKEN IN SATCHEL

Chauffeur Loses Taxicab to Men Before Stick-Up Takes Place.

TWO MEN ARRESTED FOR INVESTIGATION

One Held by Police Employe of Gasoline Firm and Robbery Victim.

Two men were held at the Sixth Precinct station for investigation last night after two gunmen had escaped in a stolen taxicab with loot estimated at more than $5,000 after a daring daylight holdup of a collector and attendant for Lord Baltimore Filling Stations, Inc., at 131 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, but a few steps from the Capitol.

The stick-up, police were convinced, was obviously the work of bandits thoroughly acquainted with the routine movements of the collector, Benjamin F. Burch, who was completing his daily round and had with him the total gross receipts of the 70 gasoline stations in the Lord Baltimore chain for Saturday night and Sunday.

But although the robbers apparently had planned the holdup to the minutest detail, even to stealing license plates from one automobile to replace those on the taxicab which they stole for their getaway after tying its owner to a tree, they overlooked a package wrapped in newspaper and containing about twice as much as was in the money bag they took.

Attendant Is Held.

One of the men held was Walter N. Tapscott, 30 years old, of A street near Third street southeast, the station attendant who was with Burch at the time of the robbery. He was taken into custody on order of Lieut. Oscar J. Letterman, of the Sixth Precinct, who said he recognized Tapscott as a man he had arrested on various occasions while he was head of the vice squad.

Lieut. Letterman said he had become suspicious when Tapscott attempted to conceal his identity and when Tapscott declared that he had come to the District only recently to take the job at the filling station, despite the fact that Lieut. Letterman had recognized him immediately.

As their first step in the robbery the two bandits, described as about 30 years old, with black hair and dark complexions and wearing blue suits and straw hats, engaged a taxicab operated by Fred Hopkins, 30 years old, colored, of 816 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

Jammed Guns in Ribs.

They told Hopkins to drive them from Seventh and T streets northwest to an address on South Carolina avenue, near Twelfth street southeast. When that destination was reached, Hopkins told police later, they told him to continue driving to the approach to the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge.

There, he said, they stuck guns in his ribs and ordered him into a thicket about 100 yards from the highway, where they bound him to a tree, telling him that they merely wanted to borrow his car for a short time, and that if he would remain quiet and rest for a couple of hours, they would bring his car back and set him free.

The robbers then sealed his mouth with adhesive tape, Hopkins reported, and drove off in his car. From the spot where he was tied, he could see automobiles whizzing past in a steady stream, but was unable to attract attention until after two hours he managed to draw a knife from his pocket and cut himself loose from the tree, he said.

Stopped Passing Motorist.

His hands, however, still were tied behind his back, and his mouth still was sealed, but making his way to the road he managed to attract the attention of a passing motorist, who released him and took him to the Eleventh Precinct, where he reported the theft of his car, Hopkins related.

Meanwhile, shortly before 3 o'clock, at almost the exact moment when Hopkins severed the bonds that held him to the tree, two men in the stolen taxicab, a small sedan, drove up to the air pump just outside the offices of the Lord Baltimore filling station at 133 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, following a few feet behind a small coupe driven by Burch, who was just completing his round of collections.

Tapscott at the moment was serving a customer, and the two bandits occupied their time by putting air

ILLINOIS CAMPAIGN QUIZ OPENS TODAY

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick to Be First Witness Before Nye Committee.

MANY OTHERS CALLED

Chicago, July 13 (A.P.).—Ruth Hanna McCormick will appear as the first witness before the Senate campaign funds committee tomorrow at the opening of its inquiry into the expenditures of the candidates in Illinois' Republican senatorial primary last April. Mrs. McCormick, who previously reported that she spent $252,500 to defeat Senator Charles S. Deneen for the nomination, requested that she be granted the privilege of appearing first, and is expected to present a prepared statement to the committee.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, chairman of the committee, said she would be called at the opening of the inquiry. He added that she had already given him a supplemental report on her expenditures, which would be read into the record, in addition to her statement.

A score or more of other witnesses have been summoned for tomorrow, principal among them being Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune; W. R. James, who was Mrs. McCormick's campaign chief in

TIGER VICTORY DROPS NATS TO SECOND PLACE

Defeated, 5-4, as Macks Trounce Browns to Regain Lead.

JONES POUNDED OUT BY DETROIT ATTACK

Burke Yields Winning Run in Eighth After Nats Even Score.

FOUR DOUBLE PLAYS ARE AIDS TO SORREL

Bluege and West Are Stars at Bat; Shires Hits Again in Pinch.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Navin Field, Detroit, Mich., July 13.—Coincidental with a Philadelphia victory in St. Louis, the Nationals this afternoon flopped into second place in the standing when they bowed to the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 4. It was a hard-fought game throughout, but, as they played today, the Johnsons had no license to win it.

The Tigers spotted them to a three-run lead in the third inning, all of these runs being unearned, and then set out to catch them, doing so in the very same round, when "Sad Sam" Jones was pounded hard. In the fourth, they took the lead and, after the Nats had knotted the string in the eighth, came back to score the run which gave them victory.

Vic Sorrell did the allen flinging and he was effective with men on bases, holding all of the nine hits garnered off his delivery to singles and pulling out of hole after hole, due either to these blows or to the six passes which he issued. While not rated highly for their fielding, the Tigers looked mighty good today, and their four double plays had much to do with making the road smoother for Sorrell. The latter, by the way, singled home the winning run in the eighth.

Base Running Poor.

Some poor judgment on the bases by Dave Harris cost the Nats a run in the sixth, and then Koenig came through with a great leaping catch for a double killing which kept the Nats from cashing on their best opportunity of the game, excluding their scoring frames.

With Harris on second, Judge on first and West up, opening the sixth, the latter shot one to right center. There should have been no doubt about the blow being a hit, but Harris held second and then just managed to reach third. Even then it looked as though the frame would net something, for this filled the bases, still with none gone. Bluege shot a liner toward left which looked like a sure hit, and Koenig came through with his fine grab, doubling up Harris at third.

A scratch hit by Bluege and Spencer's intended sacrifice, which went as a safety because first was left uncovered, gave the Nats their start in the round, and it looked as though these bingles would be wasted when Jones and Myer were retired in rapid order. Alexander, however, gave Rice life on an error, filling the bases; Sorrell wild-pitched Bluege home and Cronin then cleaned the bases with a one-shot to center.

Funk, Gehringer, Alexander and Stone singled in the fourth, and

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The economic progress not only of our own country but of the world at large has been retarded by three factors of uncertainty, the German bond issue, the tariff revision and the long session of the Congress. All of these have now been removed. Business can stand anything better than uncertainty. A bad situation it can write off and then start anew, but when confronted by the unknown it can only remain inactive. The universal oversubscription to the German loan was most encouraging. It shows the financial world has confidence in the Young plan and in the credit stability of Germany. It was also a gratifying illustration of a broad desire to restore Germany, and on our part, of a continuing purpose to help Europe. The worst and the best is now fairly well known about the tariff. The Congress will cease from troubling for a period of five months. International finance and domestic legislation have reached a more certain position. Certainty is the basis of business confidence.

25 FAMILIES ROUTED BY OKLAHOMA MOB

Race Trouble Flames After Texas White Woman Is Attacked and Slain.

ONE CROWD DISPERSED

Erick, Okla., July 13 (A.P.).—J. L. Crane, night marshal here, said tonight a mob of between 200 and 300 men last night drove approximately 25 Negro families from their homes in Erick and vicinity. Mrs. Henry Vaughan, beaten to death Friday by a Negro at her farm home near Shamrock, in nearby Texas, formerly lived in Erick.

Crane said the mob began gathering about 11 o'clock last night, assembling on the town's main street. About a dozen Negroes living in Erick were visited by the crowd and warned to leave at once.

As these Negroes snatched a few possessions and left their homes, scattering in all directions, the mob went to nearby farms where approximately a dozen Negroes lived and drove them from their homes, warning them not to return. Some of them went north to Elk City, Okla., carrying a few personal belongings with them. Others went east, west or south.

The mob dispersed after about three hours when all of the Negroes had been driven out, and today there was not a Negro left in the town, Crane said.

All was quiet here tonight. Reports that Negroes were driven from Texola, Okla., about 6 miles west of here, near the Texas border, were discounted by Sheriff M. L. Inman, of Beckman County, who said he had heard of no mob in Texola.

Sheriff Inman came here early today from Sayre, the county seat, to investigate last night's affair, and said he was satisfied Deputy Sheriff M. V. Baker and City Marshal Calvert,

DEBUTANTE UPHOLDS MAN SHE FLED WITH

Says She Knew Dickinson, Freed on Bail, Was Wed When They Stole Away.

HIKED FROM RICHMOND

Richmond, July 13 (A.P.).—Miss Mary Frances McClenny, prominent Richmond girl, missing since July 1, was at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. D. C. McClenny, today, after returning last night with her companion, Harry Dickinson, whom the girl's father had arrested on the charge of "abducting" his daughter without her parents' knowledge or consent.

The two weeks they spent together in a Waynesboro, Va., rooming house apartment came to an abrupt end late yesterday when they were discovered and returned to Richmond—the girl to her parents and Dickinson, a filling station operator, to jail.

After surrendering himself to authorities on his return, Dickinson was bailed from Henrico County Jail today in the sum of $1,000, to appear for police court hearing July 18, with M. H. Dickinson and Johnny Leadbetter, his garage associates, arrested on charges of being "accessories" in the disappearance of the girl.

Miss McClenny, in a signed statement given to a Richmond newspaper, absolved Dickinson of all blame, and said she went with him willingly and with full knowledge "that he was married, and not divorced."

She said they hitch-hiked to Waynesboro, and on July 2 rented a room, kitchenette and bath apartment where they have been staying, while officers and private detectives were combing the State and following clews leading to distant cities.

Mrs. R. L. Spradlin, in Waynesboro, today said the couple came to her rooming house and rented the apartment for two weeks, paying in

Message From Doyle Is Claimed by Widow

Meeting of 10,000 in London Ends in Confusion as Clairvoyant Offers Communication From Sir Arthur to Eldest Daughter.

London, July 13 (A.P.).—The receipt of what purports to be a direct message from the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was claimed tonight by a woman clairvoyant at a memorial meeting for him. The message was accepted as genuine by Lady Doyle.

Its substance was not made public, but on hearing it the novelist's widow exclaimed, "I am perfectly convinced the message is from my husband."

Before it was delivered the meeting, organized in Albert Hall by Spiritualist societies of London, had broken up in confusion.

During the delivery by Mrs. Estelle Roberts, a salaried clairvoyant employed by the Marylebone Spiritualist Association, of alleged messages from five spirits, about 40 or 50 persons in various parts of the hall suddenly rose and started for the doors. The noise and disturbance caused by their departure bothered Mrs. Roberts.

"I can't go on with all these people walking out," she announced from the platform.

A tumult of conversation and excited calls broke out, and the meeting came to a sudden and unexpected end.

Mrs. Roberts, turning away from the audience, which numbered fully 10,000, walked over to Lady Doyle, who was seated on the platform beside an empty chair symbolizing the presence of the late creator of Sherlock Holmes.

Within the hearing of the Associated Press correspondent, Mrs. Roberts began what she said was "a message from Sir Arthur," but before it was completed the words were drowned out by the pealing of the pipe organ, which was being played to cover the noise and confusion in the hall.

Lady Doyle refused to make the rest of it public. She said, however, "It is a happy message; one that is cheering and encouraging."

Great interest had been roused by the meeting, for there had been a long discussion in advance of alleged plans made by Sir Arthur before his death to guarantee the genuineness of any messages he might be able to send to his family.

Though his sons denied the existence of an elaborate code for this purpose, it was said Lady Doyle possessed certain means of identifying any message purported to come from Sir Arthur.

When Mrs. Roberts said she could not continue, a vast roar of excited talk rose in the hall, which was immediately drowned out by the strains of a great pipe organ.

Mrs. Roberts walked across the platform to where Lady Doyle was seated.

"I have a message from Sir Arthur," she said.

Lady Doyle, wearing a long silver laced frock and a black silk coat trimmed with fur, stood up greatly interested.

"Sir Arthur told me that one of you went into the hut (a building on the Doyle estate at Windlesham, Sussex, where Sir Arthur was buried on Friday) this morning. Is that correct?"

"Why, yes," Lady Doyle faltered. "I did." Her face beamed with interest and her eyes opened eagerly.

Methodists Warn G. O. P. Against Morrow in 1932

Republicans Told His Candidacy as Head of Ticket Would be "Tragic Mistake" and That Certain Defeat Would Follow.

The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals yesterday sounded a warning to the Republican party that it would be "a tragic mistake" to nominate Dwight W. Morrow for President in 1932.

"If he is nominated," says the board, "the probability is that he will suffer overwhelming defeat, a prophecy that is reasonably safe in spite of his heavy victory in the wet State of New Jersey.

"There is more than a little reason to suspect that half of those constituting his majority were, in fact, voting for Lindy, and the other half for Anne.

"In the campaign of 1928 the South demonstrated that it puts principle above party, and if Mr. Morrow were nominated as a wet candidate by the Republicans the North would demonstrate the same thing.

"For Mr. Morrow personally much may be said. But if the Republican party ever advances him to national leadership it will pay the price of defeat, for Mr. Morrow failed to realize that it is better to be right than to be senator."

Prohibition enforcement in 1929 cost the people of the country $4,092,725 more than in 1928, according to a statement of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment issued almost simultaneously. Recorded expenditures of the prohibition unit were $12,729,140. The Coast Guard spent $15,110,530, while approximately $5,000,000 represented the part by the Customs Service. From this total of $32,839,670 is deducted $6,474,497 collected in fines in liquor cases, leaving an aggregate expenditure of $27,365,173 on the "noble experiment."

The research department of the association estimates the loss of Federal revenue in 1929 due to prohibition at $869,507,697. This figure does not include the loss in revenue to State, county and municipal governments.

SENATE'S HOPE OF ADJOURNING SOON VANISHES

Plans to End Session on Treaty by Saturday Are Wrecked.

KEEPING OF QUORUM VEXATIOUS PROBLEM

Hoover Determines to Use "Pitiless Publicity" to Hold Senators.

NORRIS RESERVATION CALLED REFLECTION

Growing Cloture Demands Still to Be Fought by Administration.

President Hoover's week-end conferences with Republican senators developed three points of administration policy on the London Naval Treaty, according to word brought back last night from the Rapidan:

1. Administration forces will oppose, as a reflection on the President and the negotiators of the treaty, the Norris (Republican), Nebraska, reservation which specifies that nothing in the "secret documents" alters the text of the treaty.

2. The pro-treaty forces will not yield to growing demands to cut off debate by applying cloture, fearing that to smother legitimate debate would bring on a storm more menacing to the treaty than the prolongation beyond the expected period of the special session.

Deserters to Be in Limelight.

3. The pressure of "pitiless publicity" will be used to prevent senators from deserting the decision and to prevent the session from breaking up for a lack of a quorum.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republican floor leader, admitted last night, as did Senator Allen (Republican), Kansas, one of the "young guard" leaders who spent the week-end at the Rapidan, that all hope of ending the session by next Saturday, as had been expected, has now vanished in view of the complications which have arisen. Both predicted, however, that a quorum would be on deck all this week, and both indicated that pressure would be applied thereafter if necessary to prevent the treaty lines from disintegrating.

Senator Allen said there was no doubt that the administration would fight against the Norris reservation, despite threats of former treaty supporters to bolt if the reservation is voted down. Senator Allen and other Republicans who are close to the President charged that the reservation is motivated by "malice," and not genuine fear that the secret documents contain anything important.

Reservation Seen as Challenge.

As the President and the two senators who were on the American delegation, Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, and Robinson (Democrat), Arkansas, declare flatly that the documents are trivial and that there are no secret understandings or agreements, or anything else to modify the treaty text, the administration view is that the reservation amounts to a challenge of the integrity of the President and the delegates.

At the moment the treaty's fate appears to hinge on the battle over this reservation. The treaty foes think that this offers them their best opening to foment new opposition, and, if

ACCIDENT HAPPENS NEAR FALLS CHURCH

Capt. Joel T. Boone and Secretary Richey in Machine Struck.

PRESIDENT'S GROUP MAKES NO CHARGES

First Mishap of Its Nature Since Harding's Trip to West.

(Associated Press.)

Careening past President Hoover's automobile and one occupied by secret service men, a car driven by a woman yesterday crashed into the third car in the procession returning from the presidential lodge in Virginia. No one was injured. The accident occurred near Falls Church.

Lawrence Richey, secretary to the President; Capt. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician; Mrs. Boone and their young daughter, Suzanne, and Mrs. Stark McMillan, of Palo Alto, Calif. were in the White House car.

The other machine in the collision was driven by Mrs. Carolyn Lone Beach, of New York, and she was accompanied by her husband, her mother and Mr. Beach's mother and their young child. No charges were preferred against her, Mr. Richey holding the accident was an incident of travel on the crowded roads.

President Was Nearing Home.

Pushing their way through dense traffic from the camp about 125 miles from Washington, the presidential party was nearing home when the car driven by Mrs. Beach apparently got beyond her control, Mr. Richey said. It cut from side to side of the road as Mr. Hoover's machine, the first in line, passed, barely avoided the secret service car, which always trails the President closely, and then plunged head-on into the side of the third car in line.

Although both machines were damaged, no one in either was injured beyond a shaking up.

President Hoover immediately ordered his car stopped and while Mrs. Hoover remained in it, he and Senators Allen, of Kansas, and Thomas, of Idaho, who were riding in the first car, went back to assure themselves no one was hurt.

The occupants of the damaged car then transferred to the personal automobile of Mrs. Hoover, which was trailing, driven by a chauffeur, and all came directly to the White House, after stopping only a few moments. A member of the secret service and the chauffeur who was driving the smashed car remained upon the scene to confer with the Beach party and officers who came up.

Auto Was Near Upset.

Mr. Richey said only good fortune prevented their machine from overturning, and added that at one time before it could be brought to a stop it leaned so dangerously he feared it was going over.

Behind the wrecked automobile was one bearing Secretary Hurley, Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan, and Hebert, of Rhode Island, and Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, representative from Massachusetts. Four other guests—Senator and Mrs. Smoot, of Utah; Dr. Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Frederick William Wile, a newspaper writer—left before the remainder of the party, so Dr. Klein could deliver a scheduled radio address.

It was the first accident in a presidential party, White House attaches said, since a somewhat similar incident occurred in the West on President Harding's last tour.

Only last week-end another accident was threatened when a woman

GIRL'S BURNED BODY IS FOUND IN FURNACE

Man in Jail After Reported Admission of Assault and Murder.

STORE SCENE OF CRIME

Portland, Me., July 13 (A.P.).—James M. Mitchell, 22, of this city, was arrested today on a charge of murder of Miss Lillian I. MacDonald, 20, who disappeared yesterday while distributing pay envelopes to employes of a local stationery store.

The girl's body was found early today in the furnace in the basement of the six-story building the firm occupied. County Attorney Ralph M. Ingalls said Mitchell, who was an employe of the same firm as the girl, had confessed.

Part of the $750 the girl had in undistributed envelopes when she vanished, was found under the furnace. The confession was alleged to contain a statement that she had been criminally assaulted.

Miss MacDonald was killed by a blow with an iron pipe which crushed her skull. Her body was then crammed into the fire box and prodded back with the pipe which was found at the side of the remains.

County Attorney Ingalls discovered the body although a search for several hours yesterday by police and

Party Seeks Flier, Dying In Beast Infested Jungle

Companion on England-Australia Flight Reaches Burmese Town to Tell of Crash in Region Overrun by Wild Animals and Demon Worshipers.

Rangoon, Burma, July 13 (A.P.).—The tiger-haunted jungles of southern Burma have surrendered Jimmie Matthews, one of two British airmen lost for ten days on a flight from England to Australia, but today still held his companion, Eric Hook, severely injured in the crash of their airplane and perhaps dying.

After days of wandering through dense forests and swampy, malarial valleys, Mr. Matthews yesterday reached the town of Prome, 160 miles north of Rangoon, on the left bank of the Irawadi River.

He said he had been forced to leave Mr. Hook behind. Sick and desperate, Mr. Hook had urged him to go on alone, even risking the chance of being left to die in the jungles. And Mr. Matthews, in the hope of reaching some outpost of civilization, struggled on until he was picked up by a party of natives.

A rescue party, accompanied by a doctor, and escorted by police, was immediately sent out from Padaung, near Prome, to find Hook, who Mr. Matthews said was dying.

The two aviators left London June 20 in the attempt to beat Bert Hinkler's record for the England-Australia flight. Without mishap they reached Akyab, a Burmese city, on the swampy coast of the Bay of Bengal.

From there they took off on July 3 to fly to Rangoon, about 400 miles southeast. A few days later, when they were long overdue at Rangoon, villagers of Taungup, deep in the jungle 63 miles west of Prome, reported sighting an airplane flying low and apparently in difficulties. Searchers failed to locate the airmen.

According to Mr. Matthews' story, which has reached here only fragmentarily, the airplane crashed on the eastern slopes of the Arakan Yoma range, which stretches for 700 miles parallel to the Bay of Bengal, while they were crossing to the valley of the Irawadi. A leak in the gasoline pipe forced them down in the jungle.

Secret Service Blocks Road.

The Secret Service automobile ordinarily blocks the road behind the Chief Executive to prevent cars from running by, but, in this instance, the woman started to dash by, and when an attempt was made to check her, she pulled to the edge of the road and continued. Rather than cause an almost certain wreck, they let her go and she dashed by the Chief Executive, the first car to accomplish the feat in many years.

The President does not use a motorcycle escort on his trips to the Virginia lodge.

The party was returning after two quiet days spent at the lodge. With the trout fishing season over, Mr. Hoover and his guests occupied themselves with hiking and horseback riding, discussions of the treaty situation in the Senate breaking in at times upon the recreation.

Anglo-Egyptian Treaty Parley May Be Resumed

Cairo, Egypt, July 13 (A. P.)—A Royal decree was issued today adjourning parliament for three weeks. In the meantime, Hafez Afifi Pasha, foreign minister, has been appointed minister to London, a post which has been vacant for some time. Observers understood that he would resume the recently interrupted negotiations between Egypt and Great Britain.

Efforts to negotiate an Anglo-Egyptian treaty failed in London last May 8, due to Great Britain's refusal to grant certain concessions demanded by the Egyptians. The breaking off of the negotiations was received quietly in Cairo, due largely to the fact that the students were working in examinations, and the Moslem holidays were impending In a statement to the chamber of deputies, the premier predicted the differences between the two countries would be ironed out.

Slaying of Uncle Charged to Man

Anne Arundel Sheriff Says Prisoner Admits Killing Kin Over Woman.

Annapolis, Md., July 13.—Bill Rawlings, 30-year-old Negro, of Davidsonville, is lodged in the Anne Arundel County Jail tonight charged with the murder of his uncle, Nace Rawlings, 40, who was employed on the estate of Mrs. St. George Barber.

Rawlings' arrest late this afternoon terminated a search started shortly after 2 o'clock this morning by Sheriff Michael F. Carter. The man was found hiding in a cluster of bushes several miles from the scene of the shooting. En route to jail, Rawlings is said to have admitted his guilt, and claimed the argument which led to the shooting was over a woman. Also in jail with Rawlings are three other Negroes, Howard Thomas, Samuel Butler and Eugene Rawlings, who are held as accomplices in the case.

Nace Rawlings died from gun wounds which, according to the sheriff, his nephew admits firing. The shooting took place at the hut Nace Rawlings occupied on Mrs. Barber's estate.

Friends of Turkey Organize Society

Promotion of Friendship, Cooperation With People of Nation Are Aims.

New York, July 13 (A.P.).—The formation of the American Friends of Turkey, a society to promote friendship with Turkey by social service, was announced today. William H. Hoover, of Canton, Ohio, is president.

The aim of the society, a statement said, is "to cooperate with the Turkish people, their institutions and organizations and government in various ways, acceptable to all concerned, for the purpose of promoting good will and understanding between the people of America and the people of Turkey."

The society was formed with the approval of the Turkish government and Mouktar Bey, the Turkish Ambassador at Washington. Mrs. Anita McCormick Blaine, Chicago, and Rayford W. Alley, New York, are vice presidents.

Mrs. Asa K. Jennings, who took part in the repatriation from Smyrna of 300,000 Greek refugees, is the organizer of the society.

Emilio Aguinaldo Weds in Manila

Leader of Insurrection in 1899-1901 Marries for Third Time.

Manila (Monday), July 14 (A.P.).—Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, who led the Philippine insurrection against the United States in 1899-1901, today was married to Miss Maria Agoncillo. The wedding was performed by Father P. Aguinaldo, cousin of the general, in the little Sampaloc District Church here.

The ceremony was attended by about twenty relatives and intimate friends of Gen. and Mrs. Aguinaldo No Americans were present. After a wedding breakfast at the Agoncillo home, the couple left for Baguio, summer capital of the Philippines.

The bride is about 49 and the sister of Gregorio Agoncillo, one of the wealthiest of Philippine landowners.

Gen. Aguinaldo had been married twice previously.

Cuban General Denies Porto Rican Interview

San Juan, Porto Rico, July 13 (A.P.).—The Cuban department of war and marine called Brig. Gen. Jose Semidey Rodriguez, quartermaster general of the Cuban army, to account for an interview published in the newspapers here which quoted him as advocating Porto Rican independence, it was disclosed today when he repudiated the interview.

Gen. Semidey, who is a native Porto Rican, said he fought side by side with American soldiers in the Spanish-American War, and has a high regard for the United States. He said he would start back to Cuba after a week's vacation here.

Poland and Germany Sign Market Treaty

Warsaw, Poland, July 13 (A.P.).—A marketing agreement for joint sale of Polish and German rye on foreign markets through a Polish-German syndicate was signed here today.

Owing to low prices, an agreement signed last spring to regulate such deals proved ineffective, many exporters already having concluded contracts for export sales. This year's agreement, signed before harvest, provides that all rye sold abroad will pass through the syndicate's hands.

MOONEY'S LAWYERS WILL GET WITNESS

Man, Who Recants Story He Told of 1916 Bombing, to Go to Coast.

GOVERNOR WILL LISTEN

Baltimore, Md., July 13 (A.P.).—John McDonald, itinerant acrobat-waiter-watchman, whose testimony 14 years ago aided in sending Thomas J. Mooney and Warren K. Billings to prison for life, tomorrow will be released to attorneys for Mooney, who will return him to California to seek Mooney's pardon.

MacDonald, arrested here, signed a 1,500-word affidavit in which he declared that the testimony he gave was false and engineered by the Mooney-Billings prosecution at their trials in 1917 for the Preparedness Day bombing in San Francisco in 1916 which cost eight lives.

The statement in which he repudiated his testimony was made to Herbert R. O'Conor, prosecuting attorney of Baltimore; Frank P. Walsh, Mooney attorney, and other officials. Tomorrow he will be turned over to Walsh, representing the Mooney defense committee, for return to California and to appear before Gov. C. C. Young, who last week refused a pardon to Mooney.

Decision to release the prematurely aged recanting witness was reached by O'Conor today after he had received a telegram from Gov. Young in which the executive said he would hear his retraction and story of coercion and bribery by prosecutors of the bombing case.

MacDonald's statement said that his identification of Mooney and Billings as the men who planted the bomb in 1916 was false, and that he never had seen the two until taken to their cells by San Francisco police. He said that the prosecutor and a police lieutenant then told him what he was to testify and coached him before he took the witness stand. He also charged they offered him money for his testimony and paid his expenses during the trial.

MacDonald will be accompanied to the Coast by Charles Ruzicka and Hilary Gans, his attorneys here, and Walsh and Edward M. Nochels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, O'Conor said. How soon after the release is effected the trip West will be started has not yet been decided.

QUIZ OPENS TODAY ON ILLINOIS FUNDS

Cook County; James W. Snyder, who assisted her in her downstate work, and several Cook County officials.

Senator Nye did not disclose what he hoped to learn. He said his committee merely would act as a fact-finding body in pursuit of evidence to support "numerous complaints that Mrs. McCormick's campaign cost considerably more than the amount she herself spent."

The committee will report its findings to the Senate, which will determine what, if any, action is to be taken.

While the principal task of the committee is to inquire into Mrs. McCormick's campaign, Senator Nye said the activities in behalf of Senator Deneen would not be ignored. No investigation is to be made into the campaign of James Hamilton Lewis, the former senator who won the Democratic nomination without much opposition.

"No one complained that his nomination cost any more than the $35 he submitted as his expenses," Senator Nye said.

Asked about the Senate's method of determining excessive expenditures, Mr. Nye said there was no set rule or law, but mentioned the resolution adopted by the Senate in 1921 which took the stand that the $191,000 expended by Senator Newberry in Michigan was excessive.

Senator Nye, after completing the inquiry here, will go to Philadelphia on August 4 to conduct the Senate's investigation of the recent Pennsylvania senatorial primary, but said he was not sure yet whether there would have to be an inquiry into the New Jersey campaign of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow. The Senate's preliminary investigations in the New Jersey primary have not been concluded, he said, and unless sufficient indications of excessive expenditures are found there, as in Illinois and Pennsylvania, there will be no hearings in New Jersey.

Europe Union Plan Favored by Poland

Note Insists That Work of League Must Not Be Invaded, However.

Paris, July 13 (A.P.).—A note from the Polish government made public by the French foreign office today stated Poland "entirely associates itself" with the European federal union plan of Foreign Minister Briand.

The note says, however, the proposed federation must in no way infringe upon the work of the League of Nations, and it must not be directed against any state or group of states, nor be detrimental to the sovereignty of any of the contracting powers.

It adds that Poland is willing to cooperate in any way to secure the ends outlined by M. Briand, and hopes firmly the "generous initiative of the French government will find a most favorable welcome among the European people for the good of all humanity."

Ortiz Rubio's Attacker Involves Other Men

Mexico City, July 13 (A.P.).—Daniel Flores, who shot and wounded President Ortiz Rubio in the jaw on inauguration day, February 5, recently had an audience with the president and since has made important declarations to the authorities that probably will involve other persons in the attempted assassination.

This notice was communicated to the press today, but District Judge Jose Caballero, in charge of the Flores case, refused to disclose the details of the declarations. The young man has been held in the penitentiary since the shooting and is awaiting trial.

Turks Quell Rebellion Of Kurds in Provinces

London, July 13 (A. P.)—Exchange Telegraph dispatches from Istanbul, Turkey, report that the Turkish government has issued a communique announcing the Kurdish rebellion in the eastern provinces has been suppressed.

The communique says all the rebel Kurdish tribesmen, except a few isolated bands, have been annihilated or dispersed. The military operations will cease soon.

RED PREMIER

ALEXEI RYKOV.

HEAD OF COMMUNIST CABINET REELECTED

Rykov's Position as Russian Premier Menaced by His Right-Wing Activity.

SOVIET CONGRESS ENDS

Moscow, July 13 (A.P.).—Alexei Rykov, whose position not only as a member of the powerful political bureau of the Communist party, but as premier of Russia, had been seriously endangered by his activities in the right wing opposition, surprised everybody today by being reelected to the all-powerful political bureau of the Communist party.

Thus his retention of the post of head of the Russian cabinet, which foreign reports said Josef Stalin coveted, has been assured. The political bureau of the Communist party is the inner sanctum of Bolshevist government.

Rykov's reelection, in the face of repeated assertions he would be severely censured for having dared to oppose Stalin, Russia's iron man, assumes the character of a personal triumph.

Two Others Give Surprise.

Scarcely less surprising today was the reelection to the important central committee of the party of Nicholas Bucharin and Michael Tomski, who have been active members of the right wing opposition.

All these together are taken to mean that Stalin and the other leaders of the party have accepted at face value the retractions of the leaders of the so-called "right wing heresy," who had given at least tacit sympathy and support to the exiled Leon Trotzky.

Rykov and the others have promised henceforth to adhere loyally to the policies of the central committee, where Stalin is all-powerful.

Tomski, however, failed to keep his place in the political bureau, which was filled by Sergei Kirov. Mr. Kirov is head of the Leningrad branch of the Communist party and one of the rising stars on the Soviet political horizon.

Stalin himself, amid thunderous cheers, was reelected general secretary of the party, a position of the greatest power and strategic importance.

Political Bureau Line-up.

The complete membership of the political bureau, as elected by the party congress today, follows: Alexei Rykov, Clement Vorosnilov, Michael Kalinin, Jan Rudzutak, Joseph Stavolin, M. Kuibyshev, Sergei Kirov, M. Molotov, M. Kaganovich and M. Kossior. Kaganovich, Kirov and Kossior are new members. The others were reelected.

M. Maganovich, M. Molotov, M. Postishev and M. Baumann were chosen associate secretaries of the party, assisting Stalin.

The only right wing leader to be defeated entirely was Nicholas Uglanov, commissar of labor, who in the present party congress twice made sweeping and abject recantation of his views and activities as a member of the opposition. He was defeated not only for reelection as alternate member of the political bureau, but for membership as well in the central committee.

This double defeat may ultimately mean that Uglanov will lose his portfolio in the cabinet.

With today's elections, the sixteenth congress of the party closed its sessions. Three cheers were given for Stalin and then the delegates sang the "Internationale."

Southern Cross Crew Member's Father Dies

Dublin, Ireland, July 13 (A.P.).—Thomas Saul, father of Capt. J. Patrick Saul, navigator of the airplane Southern Cross on its transatlantic flight from Ireland to America, died here yesterday. He was 87 years old.

Capt. Saul's father was critically ill at the time of the Southern Cross' flight last month, but rallied on receipt of news that the plane had reached New York. The father of Squadron Leader Charles Kingsford-Smith, flight leader, was confined to his bed after the flight from the effects of excitement and strain. Mr. Kingsford-Smith was at Sydney, New South Wales, during the flight.

WATSON PROSPERITY PROPHECY ATTACKED

Senator Black Says Month Has Failed to Bring Relief Promised in Tariff.

CITES DECLINING PRICES

(Associated Press.)

Recalling the promise of Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, of "prosperous days" under the new tariff law, Senator Black, of Alabama, in a statement issued yesterday through the Democratic national committee, asserted that 30 days have failed to show it.

"Mr. Watson said in the Senate on July 13," said Senator Black, "with reference to the tariff bill, that 'it is my prediction deliberately made on the floor of the United States Senate that after the passage of this bill this afternoon the skies will clear, and within a comparatively brief time the sun again will shine and bring prosperous conditions and happy days back to the people of the United States.'

Thirty Days Have Passed.

"The very next day after this delightful prophecy the business skies grew darker and business stocks crashed to new low levels for the year. Thirty days have passed and Mr. Watson's 'prosperous conditions and happy days,' taken away from the people by ten years of misrule and special privilege, have not come 'back to the people of the United States.'

"Last Friday a Republican governor of the State of Kansas declared the doctrines enunciated by Mr. Hoover's Farm Board the 'gospel of despair.' The ineffectiveness of Mr. Hoover's farm relief policies are demonstrated by the following examples of prices of major farm products. In June, 1928, when Mr. Hoover was nominated, wheat sold for $1.40 per bushel. June, 1930, when the present tariff bill became law, it sold for 87.9 cents per bushel. On July 11, when Mr. Watson's appeal was published, it sold for 82.6 cents per bushel, and today wheat brings the lowest price at which it has sold for 16 years.

Cities Cotton Decline.

"June 14, 1928, 20.23 cents per pound; June 13, 1930, 13.28 cents per pound; July 11, 1930, 12.10 cents per pound.

"Other farm products show proportionate declines under Hoover's 'relief' measures. Industry is languishing; labor is out of employment; agriculture is helplessly struggling with low prices of farm products.

"Surely the time for 'patience' has passed. Ten years of trial is enough. It is time to restore the Government to the hands of the people, and really bring 'back to the people of the United States prosperous conditions and happy days.' This can not be done by electing a Congress in sympathy with the Hoover policies that have so signally failed."

Oregon Forests Swept by Flames

Hundreds of Firefighters Concentrate to Battle 9-Mile Blaze.

Bend, Oreg., July 13 (A.P.).—Flaming on a jagged 9-mile front after it spread over 4,000 timbered acres, a forest fire in the Cascade foothills, 10 miles west of here, tonight broke over lines in two places and raced uncontrolled in yellow pine timber.

Fire fighters gathered from many sections of Oregon. A call for 200 experienced fire fighters was sent to mills in the Klamath Basin and control units were rushed north. Retreating before the advancing flames, suppression units concentrated in the vicinity of Big Springs on a front of several miles.

Hundreds of United Spanish War Veterans were here for the opening tomorrow of the twenty-second annual encampment and it was indicated the veterans would offer their services as fire fighters.

Will H. Hays in Berlin For Film Conferences

Berlin, July 13 (A.P.).—Will H. Hays, described in the Berlin press as "the film pope of America," arrived here last night from Paris, where he took part in a film conference that brought a settlement of patent and other rights disputed by German and American movie interests.

He declined to comment on the agreement reached. He said his purpose was to get a first-hand knowledge of motion picture conditions in Germany, and "to exchange views with some of those in Germany who are contributing so much to the development of the motion picture art."

Ancient Skeletons Found in Sahara

Beloit College Expedition Returns From African Excavations.

New York, July 13 (A.P.).—Alonzo W. Pond, leader of the Logan African expedition of Beloit College, and Mrs. Pond returned today on the President Roosevelt after spending three months in the Sahara Desert seeking evidence that Africa and not Asia was the earliest home of ancient man.

Mr. Pond said the expedition, made up of 14 students from Beloit, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Northwestern universities, had discovered four ancient camp sites in the desert.

Thirty skeletons were unearthed under prehistoric ashes and thousands of fragments of flint were found, along with evidence that human bones had been used for tools.

KILLER BURKE FLEES FROM POLICE SQUAD

Detectives Reach Michigan Cottage to Discover Quarry Gone.

ONE MAN IS ARRESTED

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 13 (A.P.), Chicago detectives, on arriving at a cottage on Hess Lake in Newaygo County, in which they thought Fred Burke might be hiding, late today found that their man had departed half an hour earlier, according to reports to police here.

They arrested W. A. Smith, owner of the cottage, and were taking him to Chicago for questioning. An automobile with Illinois license plates was parked in Smith's yard. He told officials the car was left there by a Chicago man who exchanged it temporarily for one Smith owned "because he didn't want to drive his new car in the brush."

Grand Rapids police said they knew Smith but had "nothing on him." A quantity of liquor was found in the cottage.

Woman Identifies Killer.

Today's raid on the cottage at Hess Lake was a result of information Chicago detectives obtained after Mrs. Thomas Bonner, widow of a Chicago man slain last week, was said to have identified Burke as the slayer of her husband.

Burke is wanted in connection with the St. Valentine's Day massacre at Chicago last year, the slaying of a St. Joseph, Mich., policeman, the robbery of a bank at Jefferson, Wis., and other crimes.

For several months before the St. Joseph policeman was killed last winter Burke lived near St. Joseph and was known as Frederick Dane. Chicago police received information early today that he had been living at Hess Lake for three months with a young woman described as a blonde. They believe he is driving a car with Michigan license No. 639862 and has made frequent trips to Chicago driving this car.

Seven Chicago detectives with Smith as their prisoner passed through Grand Rapids about 7:45 p. m.

Another Man Released.

Walter Brock, of Grand Rapids, was arrested with Smith at the Hess Lake cottage but was released here after Grand Rapids police said they could arrest him any time he was wanted.

Smith has operated a malt and hops store in Grand Rapids for some time.

Chicago, July 13 (A.P.).—Fred Burke, sought by Chicago detectives in Michigan today is known, police say, as one of the country's most dangerous criminals. Rewards aggregating $101,000 are outstanding for his apprehension.

It is understood that today's search was based on a tip to police by Thomas Bonner, minor racketeer, who was shot to death in his home Thursday just after his wife had heard him exclaim, "You've got me wrong on that!"

Bonner is understood to have visited Burke at the Michigan retreat last week in company with Philip E. McDonnell, a relative of Burke by marriage, whose confidence Bonner had gained. Police said they believed Bonner was followed after his return from Michigan and that he was slain because gangsters learned or suspected he had double crossed them.

Both Chicago morning papers said the license number of an automobile found today at a cottage in Newaygo County, Mich., where detectives had expected to find Burke, was traced to McConnell. It was Illinois 1-052,358.

PARTY SEEKS FLIER IN BURMA JUNGLE

Both aviators were injured, Mr. Hook the more seriously. The spot where they crashed was swampy and wild, and infested with jungle beasts of prey. To the north was a region inhabited by human beings almost as savage as the beasts, for many of the hill tribes in the northern Arakan Yomas are known to the Burmese as "Demon Worshippers."

Mr. Hook and Mr. Matthews had only a small supply of food and very little drinking water. The streams were brackish and malarial. Always hampered by Mr. Hook's injuries, they stumbled down the steep slopes of the range, following for seven days the course of a mountain stream. Sometimes they slept in the hut of a jungle hunter and sometimes found no better refuge than a clump of bamboos.

Many times Mr. Mathews picked up his injured comrade and carried him, but, as Mr. Hook grew weaker, he gave in to Mr. Hook's request and went on alone to seek help.

Finally Mr. Matthews was picked up on the eastern slope of the mountains by a group of village hunters, who fed him and took him to Prome.

The aviators met high waters everywhere in the jungle, flooded by the heavy rains of the monsoon season. The Arakan Yomas, whose highest peak—Blue Mountain—reaches 7,100 feet, are steep and precipitous, and sparsely peopled.

Wife and Son See Flier When 'Chute Breaks

Burlington, Iowa, July 13 (A.P.).—Frank F. Scheridan, 34, railroad worker of West Burlington, who has made nearly 300 parachute jumps, was killed here tonight when the harness on his parachute broke just as he jumped from a plane. Among the 2,000 spectators who saw the fatal leap were Mrs. Scheridan and their son, Boyd, 12.

NEW JOBLESS COUNT WILL BE READY SOON

Figures Continue to Reveal 2 Per Cent of Country Is Without Work.

SOME CRITICISM VOICED

(Associated Press.)

Some time during the coming week the Census Bureau will be ready to announce its second installment of the count of the unemployed in the country.

Preliminary figures make it evident the total to be announced will be about half the final figure for the whole country, and it will indicate roughly that 1,200,000 persons in territory containing some 60,000,000 total inhabitants are to be classified as persons able to work, accustomed to work, and who were unable to find work on the day before a census taker visited them.

Though there was a considerable criticism by statisticians and others over the first announcement the bureau made last month, indicating more than 500,000 unemployed in territory containing a quarter of the population of the United States, the extension of the tabulations has not altered the showing anticipated by the first compilation. Accumulating returns in the bureau continue to indicate that over the country as a whole the unemployed represent about 2 per cent of the total population. Since but one-third of the total population is subject regularly to classification as being gainfully employed—children the aged, students of all degrees, the leisure class and the bulk of adult women occupied as housewives are excluded from that listing—the findings of the Government are that about 6 per cent of the working population is jobless.

It is apparent from the Government findings that unemployment is a city phenomenon, the countryside, villages and smaller towns showing insignificant proportions of the workless. The ratio in some industrial cities of unemployed to all population is running higher than 4 per cent.

In addition to this, the narrowness of the official definition of an unemployed person, including only persons "able to work, accustomed to work, and seeking work" has caused some comment.

The annual increment of young people seeking opportunity to begin a working career is not dealt with. Also, the part time employment characteristic of many industries during the past season is not allowed to influence the count, though Labor Department figures, gathered on another basis and dealing with pay roll outlays, do give an estimate for that.

MESSAGES BREAK UP SERVICES FOR DOYLE

"The message is this," said Mrs. Roberts. "'Tell Mary ——.'"

At this point the pealing of the pipe organ drowned out the rest of the message.

Mary is the name of Sir Arthur's first daughter. Lady Doyle declined to explain to the Associated Press correspondent what the rest of the message was.

"I can't," she said, "it's precious and sacred."

She added, however: "I am perfectly convinced that the message is from my husband. I am sure of that and I am as sure of the fact that he has been here with us as I am sure that I am speaking to you.

"It is a happy message, one that is cheering and encouraging."

To the right of the empty chair symbolizing Sir Arthur's presence, sat Dennis Conan Doyle, the author's elder son. Next to him sat Jean, the youngest daughter.

Says He Sat in Chair.

On the other side of the chair sat Lady Doyle, big pearls on each ear under a close-fitting black hat, and at her side, the younger son Adrian, and then Mary, the eldest daughter, to whom the message was addressed.

Mrs. Roberts said she had seen Sir Arthur during the meeting. She first saw him during a two minute silence observed at the beginning of the meeting.

She asserted that he sat in the empty chair first, and then came and stood behind her while she delivered messages "from the other spirits."

"His message," said the clairvoyant, "came in his own clear voice, and I understood it perfectly."

advance. They said their names were Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Jones, of Lynchburg, Va., giving her the impression that they were bride and groom. The man said he was looking for filling-station work.

Miss McClenny and Dickinson drove here in an automobile with Joseph Nunnally, a lawyer, and a newspaper reporter, Dickinson doing the driving. Dickinson immediately surrendered himself to the police, who said he was wanted on a warrant sworn out on information given them by Dr. McClenny.

Miss McClenny said she had been buying clothes for a week before her departure and hiding them under the seat of her automobile. She said she left a note for her father, telling him she had left home and not to look for her.

She pinned the note to the seat of her automobile which she left parked on a side street and then took a trolley car to the downtown section, where she met Dickinson. The two proceeded, the girl said, to a railroad station, where they were given a ride in an automobile to Ashland.

Their discovery was made yesterday by police on information given them by a Miss Leonard, an acquaintance, who said she saw them on the street in Waynesboro. Miss Leonard was visiting in Waynesboro at the time.

Dickinson's wife and child are now living near Russellville, Tenn. His father said she came there some time ago from Richmond and was making her home with her parents.

Bess, Her Circus Days Over, Rises to Elephant Heaven

Ringling's Friend Is Denied Gift as Pachyderm, 93, Dies of Broken Heart at Prospect of Having to Desert Beloved Sawdust.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 13 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—She was still just a show girl at heart. And that's why, at the prospect of giving up trouping under the biggest top of them all to become a sort of freak attraction in an up-State amusement park, she just lay down and died. After all, to give up your career at the age of 93—that's a wrench.

Her name was Bess, and probably to the crowds who visited performances of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus she was just one of the elephants. But the other 1,100 wild animals of the circus and the 1,600 performers and employes—they all knew better. They knew Bess to be first elephant John Ringling bought when he started his career as a circus man, and as such to be entitled to all respect.

The circus arrived here early today from Stamford, Conn., to perform in Poughkeepsie tomorrow. The showing here is to be on the grounds of Woodcliff Pleasure Park, which is owned by Fred H. Ponty, and as a gesture of friendship toward Mr. Ponty, Mr. Ringling had arranged that Bess should be turned over to him as a surprise gift. The presentation was to have been made today on behalf of Mr. Ringling by Carl Hathaway, circus manager; George Smith, assistant manager, and Frank Cook, legal adjuster.

So when the other elephants were taken from the fourth section of the circus train on its arrival here this morning, Bess was left alone in the car. What black thoughts she had at this strange procedure, what dire premonitions, will probably never be known. She stood it for a little while. Then she gave three lusty trumpet calls, sank to her knees and expired. The first to reach her was George (Deafy) Denman, who had cared for her for 34 years.

Dr. William F. Shields, the circus veterinarian, pronounced death due to senility. Then he changed his mind. "I'll retract that diagnosis," he announced. "Bess passed out from a trouper's broken heart."

She was born in India. Her earthly remains will go to Peabody Museum at Yale University.

Earl Carroll Banned From Entering Britain

London, July 13 (A.P.).—The Daily Herald, Labor government organ, today said that British port authorities had been instructed to refuse admittance to England to Earl Carrol, New York theatrical producer, if he should attempt to land.

The newspaper says that the order was apparently issued in case Carroll should attempt to escape a warrant for his arrest in connection with his present trial for the alleged immorality of his "Vanities."

Fatal Airplane Crash Laid to Disobedience

Memphis, July 13 (A.P.).—L. H. Hines, young Ripley, Miss., student pilot, was killed and his brother, Dr. T. C. Hines, prominent Aberdeen, Miss., dentist, was injured fatally at Ripley today in an airplane crash ascribed to a "student's disobedience of his instructor's orders," by Capt. Howard Stovall, manager of the Curtiss-Wright aviation base here.

Spinster Enters $5,000 Suit Citing Dentist Who Shot Cat

Kentucky Woman Says Next-Door Neighbor Wounded Jerry Seriously When He Opened Fire to Silence Plaintive Lament of Back-Fence Troubadour.

Lexington, Ky., July 13 (A.P.).—A dentist who "obeyed that impulse" and shot a tom cat who disturbed his slumbers with nocturnal arias and mating calls on the back fence has been made defendant in a $5,000 damage suit brought by the pet's spinster owner.

The suit, filed by Miss Mary B. Hutchcraft against her next-door neighbor, Dr. W. W. Taylor, alleges that the dentist inflicted on Jerry a "severe and dangerous wound," resulting in great trouble to his owner, who nursed him back to health, thereby preserving one of Jerry's nine lives.

Miss Hutchcraft's petition further sets out that "said cat by its attentive interest and affectionate manner in conduct toward her affords her great solace, pleasure and satisfaction, and that by the acts complained of she was damaged in the sum of $5,000."

Accompanying the damage suit was a petition for a restraining order to prevent the dentist from further molesting Jerry.

BUSINESS MEN PREY OF VANITY RACKET

Pseudo Press Associations' Publicity Graft Bared in Expose.

LOOT PUT IN MILLIONS

New York, July 13 (A.P.).—Under the heading "Big Business Falls for Vanity Appeal," the National Better Business Bureau, Incorporated, releases today the results of a long investigation of schemes by which important business men are mulcted of money in the belief that their biographies and photographs will be published in newspapers throughout the country when they figure in the news.

The report shows that these schemes are not snpported by the newspapers or press associations, but are often a form of "racket" growing in use and constantly finding easier game. The Better Business Bureau says that millions of dollars have been given to psuedo press associations which have no established position with newspapers for these "puffs" which clutter up editors' waste baskets from coast to coast.

The expose follows:

"In the mistaken belief that they can buy their way into the news columns of reputable newspapers, business executives are spending more than a million dollars a year. A recent announcement of the National Better Business Bureau, Inc., reveals that many of the Nation's leading executives are supporting a scheme that preys exclusively on 'big business.'

"For a fee ranging from $100 to $1,000, depending on what the traffic will bear, some twenty-odd firms styling themselves 'press bureaus' or 'press syndicates' or 'press associations' offer to prepare and publish a short but favorable biography, illustrated with a photograph of the subject, for distribution ranging upward to approximately 1,000 newspapers throughout the country.

"The solicitors represent that the newspapers will welcome the biographies, but based upon its survey of newspapers the National Better Business Bureau, Inc., reports that the vast majority of the newspapers replying to the bureau's inquiry promptly consign these unsolicited and undesired biographies to the waste basket. Some newspapers report that they retain some of the 'complimentary' biographies in the belief that they are accurate as to dates and names and therefore useful for reference purposes."

the 100 employes of the store disclosed no trace of Miss MacDonald.

When County Attorney Ingalls and Police Inspector Richard J. Nugent went to the store and asked to view the premises Edward A. Shaw, president of the firm, laughed and said 100 persons had inspected the place without result.

Miss MacDonald was last seen in the basement about 10 o'clock yesterday morning when she paid off five employes. The body, police said, was burned immediately after the slaying.

Senate Attendance Record In Opening Week of Session

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover and Senate advocates of the London naval treaty gave serious consideration yesterday to attempts to bring back to the Senate sufficient members to insure a quorum for a protracted contest on the pact.

The Senate ended the first week of debate with only 49, a bare quorum, answering the opening roll call on the final day. Only 41 senators have answered a roll call every one of the five days of the special session for the treaty. Twenty-seven have not been there at any time.

Those who have answered the opening roll call every day include:

Republicans—Allen, Borah, Capper, Couzens, Dale, Fess, Gillett, Goldsborough, Hale, Hebert, Johnson, Jones, Keyes, McCulloch, McNary, Metcalf, Norris, Nye, Oddie, Patterson, Phipps, Reed, Shortridge, Sullivan, Thomas (Idaho), Townsend, Vandenberg and Watson.

Democrats—Black, Caraway, George, Kendrick, McKellar, Overman, Sheppard, Stephens, Swanson, Trammel and Walsh (Montana).

In addition to these, Senators Moses and Robinson (Indiana), answered other roll calls on each of the five days. The following answered the opening roll call on four days:

Republicans—Bingham, Glenn, Hastings, Howell, La Follette, McMaster, Robsion (Kentucky) and Walcott.

Democrats—Harris, Robinson (Arkansas), Thomas (Oklahoma) and Walsh (Massachusetts.

The following have not attended the special session:

Republicans—Baird, Blaine, Brookhart, Cutting, Frazier, Goff, Gould, Greene, Grundy, Kean, Norbeck, Pine and Waterman.

Democrats—Ashurst, Blease, Bratton, Brock, Broussard, Dill, Hawes, Heflin, Ransdell, Smith, Steck, Tydings, Wagner and Wheeler.

Senator Norbeck is in Iceland on a commission from President Hoover. Senator Ashurst is a delegate to the Interparliamentary Union in London.

SENATE'S HOPE OF QUITTING WORK BY SATURDAY VANISHES

not to rally votes to defeat ratification, at least to predispose of sufficient number of senators to vote to adjourn the special session until fall without acting further on the treaty at this time.

As the first week of the session was consumed by the battle over the documents and the President's renewed refusal to make them public—they are still and have been available all along in confidence to any senator—various senators are growing uneasy lest the session drag out for two weeks or more and are urging cloture. Several administration Republicans are complaining bitterly that they can not remain in Washington for two more weeks without risking their political lives. These, of course, are senators up for election this year.

Filibustering Is Denied.

But Republican leaders are fearful, though they know they have the power, of the effects of forcing the treaty to a final vote before legitimate, or what Senator Allen termed "honest," debate, is ended. The treaty enemies emphasize that the entire first week was used in legitimate debate, and deny an intention of filibustering or resorting to tactics of deliberate delay.

Senator Borah said last night that he would oppose cloture, but recalled that it was applied, despite determined opposition, to put through the world court protocol in its first form.

Senator Allen estimated that the session will have to go into a third week, at least, but he is confident that a quorum can be held here, by applying the pressure of publicity to deserters if need be. As to the opposition hope of wrecking the session by lack of a quorum he added "We are not going to be beaten that way. The sentiment of the country is for this treaty and its ratification now."

Reservations Are Drafted.

The opposition is working up a series of reservations to the text. Senators Moses who spent yesterday at his office preparing a speech against the treaty; Hiram Johnson (Republican), California, and Hale (Republican), Maine, chairman of naval affairs, held a council of war last night. One new move which threatens is the sounding of an alarm over the recent Cuban-Japanese commercial treaty under which Japahese are entitled to enter the island and become citizens.

It is quite likely that the treaty foes will attempt to create a diversion by calling on the State Department to explain whether the United States was consulted about the treaty and whether Japanese who become Cuban citizens are eligible to enter the United States despite the exclusion law. An effort will be made to link this with the naval treaty on some theory of the new Japanese interest in this hemisphere and as some sort of potential menace.

The treaty foes are assembling all available material about the Cuban-Japanese pact.

The opponents will offer one reservation to the escape clause, to stipulate that if it is invoked the United States will not be restricted to duplicating such ships as the nation departing from the treaty builds. A series of other reservations is in the making, the effect of which will be to delay and complicate the ratification of the treaty.

peace officers should further mob disorders be threatened.

With the assistance of a corps of deputies, McLemore last night dispersed a mob which invaded the Negro quarter of Shamrock, threatening to burn Negro homes and run Negroes out of town. The sheriff said he believed many members of the mob came from Erick, Okla., the former home of Mrs. Vaughan.

Jesse Washington, Negro, accused of beating Mrs. Vaughan to death with an iron bar, was rushed out of Shamrock in an automobile by officers Saturday to evade a mob and now is in the Oklahoma reformatory at Granite, Okla., for safe keeping.

of Erick, were powerless to prevent the forced exodus of Negroes.

The deputy and the city marshal accompanied the crowd, which was an orderly one, and urged them to refrain from violence. The men proceeded quietly, visiting each home and warning the Negro occupants to vacate. No one was injured.

Shamrock, Tex., July 13 (A.P.).—Reports received here late today by Sheriff W. K. McLemore of Wheeler County said Negroes were driven out of Erick, Okla., last night and from Texola, Okla., today by mobs seeking reprisal for the death of Mrs. Henry Vaughan, wife of a farmer in nearby Collingsworth County, Tex., who was beaten to death Friday by a Negro.

Sheriff McLemore said he was considering asking Gov. Moody to send State rangers here to assist local Four Rangers Dispatched.

Austin, Tex., July 13 (A.P.).—Four Texas Rangers tonight were dispatched to Shamrock to aid in protecting Negroes threatened by mob violence as the result of the death of Mrs. Henry Vaughn, Collingsworth County farm wife, who was beaten to death by a Negro.

The rangers were sent by Pat Dougherty, secretary to Gov. Dan Moody, in response to a request from Sheriff W. K. McLemore, of Wheeler County. Dougherty said Sheriff McLemore described the situation at Shamrock as "threatening," but did not request National Guardsmen be sent.

Oklahoma City, July 13 (A.P.).—Advised tonight that a mob had driven Negroes from their homes in Erick, Okla., last night, Attorney General J. Berr" King said he would confer tomorrow with H. C. Ivester, Beckham County attorney, to determine what action should be taken to bring to justice the mob leaders.

"All laws must be upheld," King said.

The attorney general had not heard of the mob's action until informed by the Associated Press tonight.

Jail Doors Open For Bert Acosta

Wins Freedom at Midnight as Wife and Sons Wait for Former Byrd Pilot.

New York (Monday), July 14 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—The doors of Nassau County Jail, Mineola, Long Island, opened at 12:01 o'clock this morning to free Bert Acosta, copilot of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd on his transatlantic flight. Acosta had served fifteen days less than a six-month sentence for nonsupport of his wife, Helen, and their two small sons, Bert, jr., and Alfred.

While Warden Oscar Seaman was patting Acosta on the back and telling him: "You were the best man we ever had here in jail," a small coupe drew closer to the jail. In the car was Mrs. Acosta and the children, who had waited more than an hour for his appearance.

Dressed in new riding breeches and freshly-shined riding boots, Acosta, looking much slimmer and eyes sparkling, ran briskly to the car, waved to Warden Seaman and was driven away, as the children's chatter sounded above the hum of the motor

BRIG. GEN. SMITHER IS DEAD IN ILLINOIS

Former Chief Coordinator of Budget Bureau Was Veteran of Three Wars.

RETIRED TWO YEARS AGO

Brig. Gen. Henry C. Smither, former chief coordinator of the United States Budget Bureau and veteran of three wars, died yesterday in Lawrenceville, Ill., according to the Associated Press. He had undergone two operations. He was 56 years old.

Because of his effective work in the World War in coordinating Army supplies, Gen. Smither came to the notice of Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, now Ambassador to Great Britain. When Mr. Dawes as Vice President organized the Bureau of the Budget he selected Gen. Smither as chief coordinator. He retired two years ago.

He was born at Fort Sill, Okla., the son of Gen. Robert G. Smither. After graduation from West Point in 1897 he entered the Army and rose through the ranks to become major and colonel in 1917 and brigadier general in 1925.

In 1929 he was a member of the Dawes Commission for arranging the Santo Domingo budget system. He served in the Spanish-American War and the Philippine Insurrection and in the World War he was assistant to the chief of staff of the American Expeditionary Force.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Helen L. Smither, of Tacoma, Wash., and three children, Mrs. Paul Armel and Mrs. George W. Gering, of this city, and Henry C. Smither, jr., of Lawrenceville, Ill.

GAS STATION HELD UP BY PAIR OF BANDITS

into their tires until Tapscott went into the office, where he joined Burch. As he stepped into the office he was followed by the two men, one of whom, he and Burch told police, held two pistols while the other had one gun. They tore the telephone from the wall.

Snatched Money Satchel.

Ordering the two employes of the gas station to "reach for the moon," one of the bandits returned to the car and turned it around to face the street while the other grabbed a satchel containing several thousand dollars.

With the bag of money in his hand, the gunman dashed out of the office and leaped into the car which sped around the corner up Second street and then left along Jackson Hall alley. The getaway was not quick enough, however, to prevent a number of city guides in the offices of the Washington Guides' Association, next door, from getting a good description of the automobile and its occupants when their attention was called by a yell for assistance from Burch.

Three Guides Pursue.

Three of the guides at once set out in pursuit, in three different cars, but lost track of the sedan after it turned down the alley. They were Herbert Lugenbeel, president of the guides' association; Henry A. Van Winkle and James James.

On a "hot tip" that a car answering the description of that used by the bandits and bearing the same tag number had been seen parked at the end of the Highway Bridge, Policeman Martin A. Kelly, of the Sixth Precinct, and a Post reporter sped there to investigate. The trip was fruitless, however, but on the way back Policeman Kelly became convinced that the car would be found parked close to the scene of the holdup.

His "hunch" proved correct, and a few minutes later he found the car, bearing tags stolen from a coupe, parked in Jackson Hall Alley. It was taken to the Sixth Precinct station, where Hopkins' taxicab tags were found hidden under a seat.

A few minutes later Policeman Theodore R. Beckwith, of the Sixth Precinct, saw a man running along C street at Second. Seeing no logical reason for such exertion on such a warm day, he halted the man and questioned him.

Reasons for Running.

The marathoner said he was Victor Cercio, 27 years old, of E street near First, northwest. He denied all knowledge of the holdup and said he was running "because he was warm." Later he said he had lost his worldly all in a crap game and was running "to get away from further temptation."

At the Sixth Precinct Station he continued to insist he knew nothing of the holdup, although Hopkins identified him as one of the men who had stolen his taxicab, and a straw hat found in the recovered car was found to fit him.

VETERAN DIES

BRIG. GEN. H. C. SMITHER.

NOTED NAVY OFFICER DEAD IN SAN DIEGO

Rear Admiral A. H. Robertson, Prominent in World War, Dies of Influenza.

WILL LIE IN ARLINGTON

San Diego, Calif., July 13 (A.P.).—Rear Admiral Ashley Herman Robertson, a notable figure of America's sea forces, died at the Naval Hospital today after a brief illness.

At the time of his death Rear Admiral Robertson commanded the Eleventh Naval District, with headquarters here. Death came when it appeared he had shaken off a slight attack of influenza. Funeral services will be Tuesday. The body will be escorted with military honors to the train for interment in Arlington Cemetery.

Rear Admiral Robertson had a colorful career in America's floating defense. Born at Ashmore, Ill., December 14, 1867, he entered the Naval Academy from Illinois September 4, 1884. Graduating in 1888, he was assigned to the cruiser Atlanta, for several years flagship of the famous white squadron.

On July 1, 1916, he was commissioned a captain and was on duty as chief of staff of the First Naval District when the United States entered the World War. He was ordered to command the great troopship Mount Vernon, former German transatlantic liner Kronprincessan Cecile.

In February, 1918, he was made naval transport officer and given the duty of seeing that the bridge of ships on which the American Army crossed to France was kept up at all times.

At the close of the war the rear admiral took command of the country's first electrically driven battleship, the New Mexico. From the battleship he went to command the Atlantic destroyer force and thence to chief of staff duty at the Naval War College, Newport.

During his naval career he was awarded the Naval War College diploma, the Navy Cross and the Distinguished Service Medal of the War Department.

He is survived by his widow, Juliette G. Robertson; a stepson, Lieut. Harry Bixby, of the U. S. S. Aaron Ward; a brother, Dr. L. C. Robertson, of North Island, and a sister, Mrs. B. H. Pinnell, of Kansas, Ill.

Though the attorneys would not make a statement, it was reported a tentative offer by Mrs. Rhinelander for a final settlement, in return for which she will withdraw her New York actions, was discussed. FRENCH DENY TALES OF REVOLTS IN ITALY

Victor Emmanuel Wants to Abdicate, Say Reports Laid to Fascist Foes.

PEACE TALK BY TARDIEU

Paris, July 13 (A.P.).—A cold shower of disbelief was thrown tonight by French officials on reports from Nice that anti-Fascist revolts had broken out at Milan and many other cities of Lombardy.

Advices from Milan to government circles today made no mention whatsoever of any disturbances, which were reported by the Nice newspaper Petit Nicois.

In connection with these reports, official circles said the French Riviera had become a center of alarmist reports about affairs in Italy. Most of them are believed to have been launched by anti-Fascist exiles.

An abounding crop of rumors about the future of the Italian government has sprung up in Paris, and all are met with the greatest skepticism.

Report of Abdication.

They began with the report that King Victor Emmanuel would abdicate in favor of Crown Prince Humbert on July 15, and continued today with another to the effect that the king "manifested a desire to withdraw from power."

Whatever may be the situation in Italy, the French government has adopted stricter police measures along the Franco-Italian frontier. Detachments of gendarmes have reinforced the police in many towns, particularly at Mentone.

These measures have chiefly been taken to forestall incidents or clashes between Fascists and anti-Fascists domiciled in France.

Tardieu Espouses Peace.

A prominent French politician told the Associated Press tonight that "things are going better between France and Italy."

He was alluding to the friendly manner in which Foreign Minister Briand's special bid for naval negotiations with Italy, involving postponement of the French building program until December, had been received in Rome.

Under the hopeful atmosphere newly created in Franco-Italian relations, France is particularly anxious that no quarrels between hostile Italian political groups should take place on French soil.

A speech by Premier Tardieu today at Monibrison, emphasizing the necessity of consolidating European peace, is taken as additional proof of France's special desire to clarify her relations with Italy, and to allay recent bellicose threats by private individuals on both sides.

Reports Mystify Milan.

"Our national policy," he told the Association of Veterans of the Loire, "will consist for many years yet to come in preparing a future of organized peace and stability, and on clinging to those things we have acquired with such difficulty."

Milan, Italy, July 13 (A.P.).—Reports circulated along the French Riviera that public disturbances have recently occurred in Milan and other cities of Lombardy mystified the authorities here today. The week has passed with ordinary tranquillity and without unusual incidents.

Dungeon Gives Up Mummies of 200

Cuenca, Spain, July 13 (A.P.).—About 200 skeletons, supposedly those of persons put to death in the sixteenth century, were viewed today by thousands who visited a dungeon in the underground chambers of the old Santa Clara Seminary, where the bones were discovered yesterday.

Officials said the position of some of the skeletons indicated the victims had died in terrible agony. Some of the bodies were mummified.

Young Lutherans Told to Carry On Atheism Is Marshaling Its Forces, Valparaiso University Head Asserts.

Cleveland, July 13 (A.P.).—A call to young Lutherans throughout the world to "contend for the faith" was made here today by the Rev. O. C. Kreinheder, president-elect of Valparaiso University, at the opening service of the International Walther League convention.

Approximately 10000 persons attended the services, which were held in observation of the 400th anniversary of the Augsburg confession.

"Atheism is marshaling its forces," Mr. Kreinheder warned. "Churchmen argue that we must rationalize our creed, but we must fight for the faith with the word of God."

The convention is bringing about 2,000 delegates from the United States, Canada and Mexico, as well as a number of leading missionaries, educators and laymen of the synodical conference of the Lutheran Church.

Pan-Europe Union Favored by Athens

Answer to Briand Proposal Says Plan Is in Accord With Grecian Ideals.

Athens, July 13 (A.P.).—The Greek government's answer to the memorandum of M. Briand, of France, on a Pan-European Union was handed to the French minister here today.

The note says the creation of a permanent machinery for systematic political and economic cooperation between European States, within the League of Nations frame, is in accord with the Greek government's ideals and real interests. The Greek government, the note adds, will make further observations in a memorandum to be presented when the subject comes up for discussion at Geneva.

These observations, the answer says, will be inspired as much by Europe's general interests as by those of other nations. In conclusion, the note says Greece would view sympathetically Turkey's participation in Europe's federal union.

Society Scans Eligibles for Marine Place

Four Loom in Speculation as Possible Successor to Neville.

By JEAN ELIOT.

IN the midst of general sorrow over the passing of Maj. Gen. Wendell C. Neville, a gallant soldier and a man greatly beloved in the service, one begins to hear speculation as to who is to be his successor as commandant of the Marine Corps. The name of Maj Gen. Smedley Butler seems to enter most frequently into the discussion wherever service folk gather in groups to talk shop, but others looming as important possibilities are Maj. Gen. Logan Feland, Maj. Gen. Ben H. Fuller and Brig. Gen. John H. Russell, sometime U. S. High Commissioner to Haiti.

All have had service in Washington at one time or another and any one of the four would be welcomed here on his own account and for the sake of a charming wife. Dame Rumor has it that considerable influence in high quarters is being brought to bear in favor of Gen. Russell's appointment and Gen. Butler, son of the late Representative Thomas W. Butler, of Pennsylvania, is not without strong political pull. So it's likely to be a close race—and may yet go to a dark horse.

Although for the last ten years Gen. Russell has been on duty in Haiti, he and Mrs. Russell have been occasional visitors in Washington. Previously they were stationed here for a long period and took a very active part in society. Gen. and Mrs. Russell recently bought a charming old estate near Alexandria, Va., presumably with the intention of making it their permanent home, but should Gen. Russell be made commandant of the Marine Corps they would have at their disposal the commandant's house at the Marine Barracks, a beautiful old mansion which dates from the early nineteenth century.

Although the Butlers have not been stationed in Washington for many a long day, their friends here have had no difficulty in keeping track of them, for Gen. Butler is persistently "in the news." He has a brilliant and spectacular service record and his experiment in taking command of the Philadelphia police force brought him very much into the limelight. Service on the West Coast and in China followed this experience and for some time Gen. Butler has been in command at Quantico.

His daughter, Miss Ethel Butler, was one of the bridesmaids at the marriage of Miss Alice Cutts, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Richard Cutts, and Mr. John Tillotson Wainwright in Washington in early June.

Gen. and Mrs. Fuller were stationed at the Marine Barracks in Washington until comparatively recently, when the general was ordered to command of the Pacific department, and earlier Gen. Feland had several tours of duty here. Mrs. Feland, a handsome woman, who is blessed with a beautiful voice, was very popular in society while her husband was on duty here.

Mrs. Harry Guggenheim On Way Home.

Mrs. Harry F. Guggenheim, wife of the Ambassador to Cuba, is on her way to the United States, where the ambassador will join her within a few days to pass several months at their summer home in Port Washington, Long Island. Before Mrs. Guggenheim's departure from Havana they were hosts at a dinner given in honor of President and Mrs. Machado, entertaining about 50 guests.

The former Ambassador to Turkey and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, who recently returned to this country from a trip abroad, are now at their villa, Mizzentop, Bar Harbor, Me.

The newly appointed Minister to Haiti, Mr. Dana Gardner Munro, is occupying the Munro House at Metoxet, Waquoit Bay, near Cape Cod, Mass. His father, Prof. Dana Carlton Munro, of the department of medieval history at Princeton, and Mrs. Munro have visited Waquoit Bay for 32 summers. Mrs. D. C. Munro is now touring Ireland and during her absence the Minister and Mrs. Munro and their three children are occupying the fine old house.

Representative and Mrs. Allen T. Treadway are now established at their log cabin on the east shore of Mahkeenac Lake in the Berkshire Hills. Mrs. Treadway's sister, Mrs. Horace Shares, and Miss Janet Shares, who attends Smith College, are at Heaton Hall for the summer.

Admiral and Mrs. Dupuy McCormick had as their week-end guests at Berryville, Va., Mr. Jonathan Brewster Bingham, son of Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham, of Salem, Conn.; Commander and Mrs. John W. Morse and three children, Francis, Melvin and John Morse.

The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Walter E. Hope, who are passing the summer at Watch Hill, R. I., had as their guests last week Attorney General William D. Mitchell, Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont and Judge Thomas D. Thatcher, Solicitor General.

The Assistant Naval Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. W. C. Horton entertained a small party at the dinner dance at the Plage Deauville at the Wardman Park Hotel on Saturday evening. Mr. Britten Browne was also among those at the Plage Deauville that evening.

The Third Secretary of the American Embassy at Havana, Mr. Charles Page, has returned there after a vacation in the North. In a few weeks he will go to his new post in Quito, Ecuador, as secretary of legation under the recently appointed Minister to Ecuador, Mr. William Dawson.

Brig. Gen. H. R. Styer, U. S. A., retired, and Mrs. Styer, who have been at Eagle Lake, Fla., for some years, are now living with their daughter, Mrs. K. E. Seymour, at Winchester, Va.

Mrs. John R. Williams has moved into her new home, Dower House, on West street, Beverly Farms, Nahant, Mass., just across the street from Edgewater, the home of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Leiter.

The Black Watch of Canada, famous regiment, will be in the parade with its band of pipers.

In the evening Gov. Allen, acting for the Commonwealth, will entertain the guests at a dinner at the Copley Plaza Hotel. $4 to $9
If sleep is no longer as restful as it used to be—have your old mattress made into a buoyant new one that literally croons you to sleep.
For health's sake, too, have them sterilized and cleaned! For dirt and germs get inside the ticking, where you can not clean. You will be surprised to see how dirty the inside of even a well-cared-for mattress can become! We will make your old mattresses into new ones at a cost of only $4 to $9.
First, they will be put into a sterilizer. There 230 degrees of heat kills all germs. Then all the hair or felt is taken out and run through a cleaner. Every particle of dirt is removed.
A felting machine then turns it into layer after layer of snowy-white, fleecy felt, which is filled into charming, new ticking and sewed. It is then really NEW.

TRAMPLING ART FOR PROFITS

FOR all its virtues, modern industrialism can run amuck under the spur of greed for profits. Witness, the ruin threatening the Art of Music.

300 musicians in Hollywood supply all the "music" offered in thousands of theatres. Can such a tiny reservoir of talent nurture artistic progress?

The true function of the machine is to increase the value of the product fed into it—not to debase it. Therefore mechanical music, as a substitute for Living Music, is a spurious form of progress—Like a loom converting good wool into shoddy.

The grind organ, however operated, is a grind organ still. For music is an emotional art, a form of social intercourse, and hence dependent upon human contact.

Who profits by the elimination of genuine music from the theatre? Not the music-loving public!

If you agree that theatre patrons are entitled to real music—in addition to talking and sound motion pictures, for the price they pay—HELP SAVE THE ART FROM RUIN. Enroll with millions of others in the Music Defense League. When the public's voice is raised its will must be served!

U.S. SQUAD TO CURB REDS MAY BE ASKED

National Civic Federation Quotes Root as Saying One Is Necessary.

QUIZ TO GO TO NEW YORK

New York, July 13 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—An indication that the present congressional investigation of the Communists, which moves to New York Tuesday, will be followed by a demand that the Federal Government maintain an undercover squad to keep watch on their activities in the future was seen in a statement issued today by the National Civic Federation.

The federation points out that there is now no law enabling Federal authorities to do this, and quotes Elihu Root, distinguished international jurist, as saying that "Of course, such a force ought to be provided."

"The facts which will be brought out during the hearings of the congressional committee," says the statement, "will undoubtedly result in so arousing the American people out of their false sense of security that they will demand remedial legislation."

Secret Service Powerless.

"The Secret Service of the Treasury Department has no power to deal with such questions," the report continues, "and strange to say, the Immigration Bureau is in about the same plight, while in peace times the Army and Navy Departments have no machinery for work of this character."

The report quotes a letter dated July 7 from Mr. Root to Ralph M. Easley, secretary of the federation, as follows:

"I am glad you have succeeded in getting a start made at Washington in the direction of remedying the defect in our police service.

"There is undoubtedly a defect in our present organization for police purpose. It arises from the way in which our Government has developed. General police power belongs in the States.

Holds "Empire" Aids Assault.

"The Federal Government is a Government of enumerated powers, and special bodies of police officers have been created to aid in the exercise of those enumerated powers. Thus, we have a body of police officers aiding in the enforcement of the customs laws of the United States; another body of police officers aiding in the enforcement of the internal revenue laws; another aiding in the enforcement of the laws against counterfeiting; another aiding in the enforcement of the prohibition laws; but we have no general Federal police officers, because the States and not the Federal Government exercises general police authority.

"Now we have reason to believe that an assault is being made by secret means, supported by the resources of a great empire, aimed at the destruction of our system of government and we find that the Federal Government has no police force available for our protection. Of course, such a force ought to be provided."

Capone Declines To Leave Miami

Gangster's Attorney Talks of Client's Rights and "Defense of Home."

Miami, Fla., July 13 (A.P.).—Although Scarface Al Capone's vacation visit at his estate near here has been interrupted by a number of legal entanglements and he is anxious to return to Chicago, he will refuse to be "run out," J. F. Gordon, one of his attorneys said today. Capone spent the day fishing and decided, Gordon said, that he would continue to maintain his $250,000 residence on Palm Island, Miami Beach, despite the effort to oust him. His plans to leave for Chicago as soon as possible are unchanged, the attorney said.

"He wants to get some rest from the fight he has had to put up the last three months to defend his home and his constitutional right to live anywhere he chooses," Gordon said, "but he will refuse to let the City of Miami or Dade County run him out as long as he obeys laws within the area."

Capone was acquitted yesterday on one of three charges of perjury brought against him as a part of the official campaign to oust him.

FOREST FIRE RAGES NEAR BLACKSBURG

Two Companies of Guardsmen Fighting Flames on Brush Mountain.

MANY HOMES MENACED

Blacksburg, Va., July 13 (A.P.).—Forest fires continued to rage on Brush Mountain late today although citizens and national guardsmen who fought the flames all night believed they had won a gruelling battle to save homes of farmers at the base of the slope.

Ditches were dug and backfires started to check the blaze, which spread rapidly through woodland parched by a sustained drought and threatened many farm houses and buildings. One barn was burned and flames approached close to many homes before they were checked by efforts of the fighters.

Two companies of national guardsmen from Blacksburg and Christiansburg and scores of citizens continued the fight today as the wind swept the fire southeastward, away from most of the farm homes in the vicinity. A light sprinkle during the morning apparently had no effect on the blaze and citizens were looking hopefully at clouds indicative of thundershowers.

National Guard officers visiting Blacksburg today said the fire was partially under control, but would continue to burn for many days unless rain checked its sweep. The wind velocity had decreased since the morning and late today was a gentle breeze.

Events of the War 13 Years Ago Today

July 14, 1917.

Maj. Gen. Goethals, manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, announced that 425 steel ships would be built immediately to combat Germany's submarine campaign.

Formal order for the drafting of 687,000 men into military service was promulgated by President Wilson.

Pope Benedict XV sent letters proposing peace to the Emperor of Austria and to the King of Bavaria.

It was believed in London diplomatic circles that the political crisis in Germany would bring overtures for peace.

The State highway near New Castle was closed after flames destroyed a bridge at Fincastle Mountain, the fire burning on both sides of the highway. Several other forest fires were reported in the vicinity and some homes were in the territory threatened.

Food and water was taken last night and today to firefighters in the Brush Mountain sector, which is only 3 miles from Blacksburg. Exhausted citizens were furnished nourishment as they retired momentorily from the battle. Guardsmen told of one home saved when the flames were checked by an orchard that surrounded the house.

The burned area on Brush Mountain was approximately 7 by 3 miles, but the timber destroyed was not of great value.

Officers and fire wardens decided not to ask the governor for additional troops, but to continue the fight to save farms until danger was past.

Mourners Swoon At Mass Funeral

Services Are Held for 99 Dead in German Blast Held at Hausdorf.

Hausdorf, Germany, July 13 (A.P.). More than 50 persons swooned today as 99 victims of the coal mine disaster near Neurode last Wednesday were laid to rest. The disaster was believed to have cost about 152 lives, 104 of the bodies having been recovered.

The ceremonies were attended by more than 20,000 mourners, including representatives of the governor and numerous workmen's delegations, who came from all parts of Germany. The obsequies began with music by the United Miners' Band from the Silesian coal district.

The singing of the dirge, "Down There Is Peace," was interrupted by cries of anguish. At least 50 persons fainted and received first aid.

French Atlantic Fliers Reach Africa by Boat

Dakar, Senegal, July 13 (A.P.).—Jean Mermoz, French air mail flier, and his two companions, who were forced to descend on the sea July 9 while en route from Brazil to Africa, arrived here yesterday aboard the dispatch boat Phocee, which rescued them.

The fliers were in perfect health, and said they would leave for France by airplane as soon as possible. They said they were unable to determine the exact cause of the oil leak which forced their descent 600 miles from here. The Aeropostale Co. has announced plans to try to recover their abandoned airplane in hope of learning the cause of the leak.

V

Growing to Order

The public asks for more A&P

The tales Americans are the proudest of are those of poor boys who rose to greatness, and of modest business ventures that became great industries.

Like many early American businesses, A & P was once small but hopeful—a single little business. About all A & P could call its own in 1859 was its red painted front and the belief that women like good food at low prices.

The first A & P store was a busy store—so busy that a second store was added, then a third; and . . . the little business grew up. It became a leader among food merchants, slowly and naturally, unaided by vast capital or mergers.

Ask yourself why A & P grew . . . It grew because the public accepted and encouraged A & P's methods of doing business. The A & P store in your neighborhood is there because great numbers of women want it there.

A & P is a little store that made good.

WHAT HOPE?

The barnstorming tour of Chairman Legge and Secretary Hyde through the Western wheat belt, in the hope of persuading farmers to reduce their wheat acreage, has not proved easy going. Gov. Reed of Kansas followed the Government barnstormers and advocated a policy of "let the other fellow do it," much to the approval of the bucolic audiences. Publishers of the Wichita Beacon, angered by what they considered slurring remarks made by Chairman Legge, telegraphed President Hoover a request for his resignation. In Texas, similar opposition was encountered. The Panhandle is peculiarly adapted to the growing of wheat, and the people there contend that if curtailment is vital it should be undertaken in less favored regions. The crowning attack against acreage curtailment, however, comes from Senator Capper, who formally calls upon the board to go into the market and purchase an additional 100,000,000 bushels of wheat "to help the farmer through the present critical emergency."

Purchase of a commodity, no matter how essential, and its withdrawal from the market for the purpose of improving the price, and in the hope that lean years may materialize to permit its subsequent unloading, is a dangerous procedure. Great Britain found that course disastrous in connection with her attempt, through the Stevenson act, to improve the price of rubber. Brazil found it disastrous in connection with the "valorization" of coffee. Both countries found that the withdrawal of the commodity from the market brought about increased production. They discovered that lean years have a habit of failing to materialize. In the end the purchasing authority was left with huge stores of the commodity on its hands, purchased sometimes at low prices but costly later because of interest and storage and handling charges. The mere fact that these huge surpluses were in existence ever ready for unloading, exerted a continuously depressing effect on price levels. Brazil today has a huge store of coffee on hand for which there is no market, and the proposal to destroy it is being seriously considered.

Suppose the Farm Board were to buy an additional 100,000,000 bushels of wheat? It already holds a vast supply, stored at a cost of many thousands of dollars a day, and additional storage facilities are at a premium. Is it to be supposed that the withdrawal of this wheat from the market would improve the price to any considerable degree? Grain dealers and consumers would know that the supply was ready for release whenever prices improved. Prices of next year's crop would be depressed because of the knowledge that the Government had to get out from under its holdings. Wheat now is selling at around the 1914 level. The Farm Board's original purchases failed to hold prices up, and there is no reason to believe that additional purchases would serve even to "peg," let alone improve, the price.

The alternative to Government purchase of wheat and the eventual destruction of its holdings at the expense of the taxpayer is curtailment of production. Output must be adjusted to demand. But the farmers of Kansas and Texas, who must be considered typical of farmers everywhere, want to "let George do it." Every man's acres are peculiarly adapted to the production of wheat. Let some other fellow, whose acres are of a different soil texture or whose farm is located in a different climate belt, raise soy beans, peanuts or alfalfa where hitherto golden grain has billowed in the sun. Since this is the attitude of farmers, what hope is there for farm relief?

COOPERATION IN OIL FIELDS.

Secretary Wilbur has gone to California with the objective of saving the Government $300,000,000. This was made possible by the enactment in the last days of the late session of a bill permitting the Government to enter into agreements for cooperative development of oil fields in which it has an interest. At present about 400,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas is being wasted daily in the Kettleman Hills field of California, because of the absence of any cooperative plan of conserving it. Thirty per cent of this rich field is under Government ownership. It is hoped to bring the entire area under the unified development plan.

If Secretary Wilbur succeeds with the proposed agreement, the Kettleman Hills field will be exploited as if it were a single unit. Wells will be sunk without regard to property lines, and natural gas conserved as a matter of course. Each property owner in the field would then share in the proceeds on a proportionate basis. The experiment is important for the saving it will make possible to the Government, but it is far more significant as an example to the oil industry. Secretary Wilbur estimates that the value of the country's oil fields might be doubled if this plan were universally adopted.

Under present circumstances, the man who gets a well sunk first drains out the most oil. The more wells he drills per acre, the greater percentage of oil he draws from surrounding land. Where the Government is part owner in a field, it has had to drill on this competitive basis or lose its oil. This method not only increases the cost of production, but it forces every producer to draw out his oil regardless of supply or market conditions. It is one of the chief contributing factors to the distress of the industry.

Secretary Wilbur's experiment will be watched with interest in every oil-producing region. Those who have the welfare of the industry at heart are hoping for its success and subsequent adoption of the cooperative plan in every important petroleum field.

INADEQUATE ARMY PAY.

The War Department reports a record number of resignations from the Air Corps during the fiscal year just ended, giving as an explanation the larger financial opportunities that await qualified pilots in civil aviation. The discontent and unrest that prevail in the corps is no greater than that in the other services. The commissioned personnel of the Army, especially the junior officers, is disgusted at the treatment it has received.

The Army is remunerated according to the pay schedules of the act of 1922. This bill was designed to afford increases over the schedule contained in the act of 1908, but it was filled with jokers and created many cases of inequality. The 1922 bill was supposed to increase the pay schedule by 11 per cent over the 1908 bill, but, according to Government statistics, the cost of living increased 104 per cent between 1908 and 1922. The service believes that it was entitled to more than an 11 per cent raise in 1922. If, it argues, the 1908 basis constituted a proper evaluation of the worth of the services of an officer of a certain rank at that time, an 11 per cent increase, taking into consideration the increased cost of living and the pay advances that had been made in civil life, failed to bring the pay level to a satisfactory position in 1922.

Agitation for revision of service pay schedules was brought to a climax in July, 1929, when an interdepartmental pay board, having no official standing, but organized for the specific purpose of considering the tangled pay situation, made a report. The findings of that body have since been largely ignored. The Senate during the recent session appointed a committee to study the question, and it was believed that the committee would base its investigation on the pay board report, but adjournment was taken without even the filing of a report by the committee. Meanwhile, the Air Corps reports a record number of resignations and all branches of the service are nursing a grievance because of inadequate pay.

Promotion and pay of the uniformed services are difficult questions. It is not easy to draft legislation affecting either that does not discriminate against certain groups or ranks. However, it is vital to morale and efficiency that the uniformed services be contented and adequately compensated. New pay and promotion legislation should be one of the first concerns of Congress at the next session.

FRAUDULENT ADVERTISING.

The Federal Trade Commission has suffered a decided setback in its campaign against misrepresentation in advertising. A decision handed down by the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals points out that the Federal Trade Commission act gives that body no authority to establish a general censorship over advertising. According to the court, the commission has misconceived the extent of its jurisdiction.

The commission issued an order requiring a Detroit company to desist from making certain claims and statements in its advertisement of an antifat remedy. The order was set aside by the court on the ground that the commission has no such authority. Judge Denison found that the commission was set up as an aid to the enforcement of the Government's antitrust policy. Jurisdiction of the commission, he said, does not go beyond the limits of fair relationship to that policy.

It was found from the records in this case and from previous rulings that the commission did not take this limited view of its authority, "but that it believes itself authorized to issue its 'desist and refrain' orders in any case where it concludes that sales methods may mislead a substantial part of the purchasing public, in a way and to an extent that, in the judgment of the commission, is injurious to the purchaser." The court found in this case no evidence of unfair competition such as the statute in question aims to prevent.

The decision draws a sharp line that will leave the Federal Trade Commission powerless to interfere with false and misleading advertising that does not involve unfair competition, or is not related to the antimonopoly policy of the Government. There is a general feeling that some Federal agency should be authorized to curb fraudulent advertisements, just as the public is protected by the pure foods act. Unscrupulous interests try to deceive the public with fraudulent claims for worthless merchandise, which tends to discredit advertising in general. The public should be protected from such exploitation.

If the Federal Trade Commission has not this authority at present, a revision of the act defining its duties is advisable. Congress will no doubt be called upon to redraft its views on this question. An investigation as to whether or not the commission is going beyond the authority Congress intended to give it would doubtless reveal deficiencies in the act and pave the way for extending the commission's jurisdiction.

NO CONVICT GOODS FROM RUSSIA.

Shipments of lumber from Russia to the United States were held up at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Providence, R. I., last week because of the suspicion of customs agents that the lumber had been produced by convict labor. The Treasury Department was unable to determine the circumstances under which the lumber was produced, and therefore ordered that it be allowed to enter. The same ruling will apply to other shipments now on their way to the United States.

Importation of all commodities produced with the aid of forced or indentured labor is prohibited by the tariff act. This provision prevents dumping of foreign prison-made goods in the United States. Every country is seeking an outlet for commodities made by convict labor, because business interests always object to the sale of such articles in open competition with free-labor products. It is highly important that this provision of the tariff act be enforced.

Being unable to determine whether or not the lumber imported from Russia is a product of prison labor, the Treasury has decided to send an investigator to that country. Absence of diplomatic relations will not be permitted to serve as a pretext by the Soviet to camouflage the circumstances surrounding the timber industry.

Forced labor has become widespread in Russia. Virtually every industrial worker is a slave of the state, and the system is being gradually extended to the farm. Those who refuse to comply with the communist plan find themselves prisoners. Thousands are sent into Siberia, condemned to a life of toil in a lumber camp or a mine. Political prisoners are so numerous that the bolshevists mobilize a great army of convict workers. To allow importation of commodities produced under these conditions would be to encourage the slavery that is imposed upon the Russian people. The inquiry by the Treasury Department might well be extended to other commodities that are shipped into American ports from Russia. Probably they are all produced by convict labor.

THE LOST STATE

From the Louisville Courier Journal.

Jonesboro, Tenn., has brought back to the recollection of many an almost forgotten chapter in American history. Jonesboro celebrated its 150th birthday, appropriately on July 4, and memories were revived of the "Lost State of Franklin," which had a precarious existence of four years under that stalwart patriot, John Sevier. Many of Sevier's descendants remain in Tennessee and Kentucky.

It was in 1784 that indignant citizens of Jonesboro and surrounding territory gathered in a log cabin listened to the reading of the Declaration of Independence, and formed, of the three counties of North Carolina beyond the Bald Mountains and the Holston River, the State of Franklin. Members of a legislature were elected and Col. Sevier, the Revolutionary leader, chosen governor. The State of Franklin was established because North Carolina, along with other States, had ceded to the United States its vacant lands, proceeds from whose sale or taxes were to be applied to the national debt. To this the inhabitants objected.

North Carolina was somewhat disturbed by this turn of events and when the Franklinites moved their capital from Jonesboro to Greeneville and began to function, the act of cession was repealed and the mountain people told to return to their former allegiance. This was some years before Tennessee was formed as a State. For a time, the people of Franklin were governed by two sets of officials and they were divided in their allegiance. Fortunately, however, no bloodshed or serious conflict ensued. The result was the adoption of a compromise whereby the citizen might decide which government he preferred to support. North Carolina offered inducements, and gradually the Franklinites fell off until there was only Gov. Sevier left. Very probably his annual salary of 1,000 deerskins had not been paid regularly.

Jonesboro's history is much like that of Harrodsburg. Each was a pioneer outpost, though the Kentucky town, established before the Revolution, antedated its mountain contemporary by six years. Each gave birth to great leaders and was the home of famous men. Andrew Jackson was linked with each, having practiced law in Jonesboro and having found a wife in Harrodsburg. The Kentucky town was named for its founder, the intrepid James Harrod, pioneer; the Tennessee town for Willie Jones, North Carolina patriot, whose protege was John Paul Jones. As Sevier is indissolubly linked with Jonesboro so is George Rogers Clark with Harrodsburg. From each sprang the men who reclaimed all the fair land between the Alleghenies and the Mississippi from nature's primitive forces and the savage.

INSTALLMENT SENTENCE.

An Omaha man, observes the Lincoln State Journal, convicted of reckless driving, was sentenced to five days in jail, and then, to protect the man's job, the judge made the order that the convicted man should spend five Sundays in jail, from early morning until late in the evening. The reckless driver sentenced to jail on the day others are using the road most is certain to cause no road accidents. At the same time the penalty is probably severe enough to bring about a self-analysis that will work a lasting good.

HAPPY HEARTS.

Happy they, who through the day
Meet with friends along the way;
And when time and strength are spent,
Sit at home and are content.

Happy they, whate'er their place,
Who have edged their deeds with grace;
And by neighbors, near and far,
Truly loved and cherished are.

Happy they, who understand
Life to no man's whim is planned;
That both joy and grief must fall,
To the knowledge of us all.

Happy they who bravely bear
What descends of pain and care;
Undisturbed by pomp or pride,
Asking naught that is denied.

Happy they, though missing fame,
Or the cheers which conquerors claim;
Who have lived and labored well,
And in men's affections dwell.

You Can't Prize a Gem So Much If You Know There's Many Another Like It.
By ROBERT QUILLEN

MANY modern marriages fail for the same reason that a story fails to entertain people who have heard it many times.

When scientists wish to discover whether certain treatment will cause a thing to differ from the normal, they use a "control" to afford comparison.

When the experiment is finished, the thing treated is compared with the untreated "control" and the contrast reveals the change from the normal.

A similar method will reveal the fault in these unfortunate marriages.

Among creatures that mate for life, the natural and ideal mating is a first experience.

A maiden in the first blush of womanhood—innocent, timid, inexperienced—is wooed by an enchanted youth who thinks her the fairest of her sex.

He makes every effort within his power to win her good opinion and her affection, and the effort to be worthy of her makes him a nobler and a manlier man.

He would give his life to protect her from others, and not for worlds would he harm her himself.

When her heart at last is won, and they are united by a ceremony that seems sacred to both, the intimacies of their union are sanctioned by a mutual adoration and respect and protectiveness that make vulgarity and sordidness impossible.

Conscience-clear and self-respecting, they enjoy one another's caresses in the belief that no other mate on earth could afford such bliss.

That is their greatest assurance of loyalty—the belief, born of inexperience, that the thrill of a caress is a product of their love.

Now consider the unfortunate among the moderns.

Much experience of "petting" has taught them that one kiss is much like another.

Their first kiss, early in their wooing, is not a solemn and sacred pledge, but an experience without novelty or great significance.

Their wooing, in its latter stages, is so like the intimacy of matrimony that marriage itself brings them little that is new.

And both know that every thrill their union affords could be duplicated with another mate.

Marriage is a failure because they left it little to give.

There is only one first time to see the circus, and the best act has no thrill for those who have rehearsed it.

THE ONCE OVER
By H. I. PHILLIPS

RADIO AND MORE EGGS.

Radio music increases the laying of hens by 15 per cent, according to experiments conducted on a Barnegat, N. J., poultry farm. Since the day a loud speaker was introduced into the henhouse the birds have been more productive, the proprietor announces.

* * * *

Whether the hens appreciate the music or are so disturbed that they lose control is still to be determined.

* * * *

The experiment is to be pressed to determine whether the egg industry can look for its best results through Amos 'n' Andy, the U. S. Navy Band, the General Motors Hour, Heywood Broun, Vincent Lopez or the Literary Digest program.

* * * *

Elmer Twitchell, who owns a few chickens, but who has been getting very few eggs, was quick to try the radio experiment. He announces the following results:

LILA MAY.
(White Leghorn hen, aged 1 year 6 months.)

Lila May had been a very poor layer. Eggs seemed the last things on her mind. A loud speaker was put in the henhouse and after hearing Amos and the Kingfish in a taxicab office argument she took to the nest at once. Mr. Twitchell chased her off for her own good and found six eggs and four egg-cups.

JENNIE K.
(A Plymouth Rock, aged 2 years 3 months 4 days.)

Jennie had been strangely indolent. Life seemed a bore to her. She was dull and listless. She lacked all sense of gratitude. Mr. Twitchell turned on the radio during the Literary Digest hour and after listening to Mr. Floyd Gibbons in high gear, Jennie laid a dozen eggs in full flight and tried to dive for the baby mackerel under the impression she was a seagull.

MOLLY THE GREAT.
(A Wyandotte, aged 2 years, 1 month 2 days.)

One egg a day seemed to be Mollie the Great's limit. She heard Graham MacNamee described a boat race one evening, climbed into an egg crate while delirious and filled it in four minutes eighteen and one-half seconds, establishing a new egg-laying record. If there were more boat races and Mr. MacNamee could describe them all, there is no telling what Molly could do for the Nation.

PRINCESS PENELOPE.
(A Buff Cochin, age unknown.)

The Princess was just an ordinary run-of-the-mill hen. She was no bargain to anybody. Since listening to a complete radio program she has shown great improvement, and laid an egg every three hours. Mr. Twitchell is now having her wired for ham and bacon.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Low Per Capita Circulation in Spite of Immense Gold Hoard—Need of Bank Law Reform.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Two significant statements were published during the past week which have a direct bearing on the depressed business condition throughout the country, with its resultant unemployment and the breaking down of the purchasing and consuming power of the country. One was by Calvin Coolidge, referring to the business depression from 1812 to 1834 which, he says, "was complicated by a bad banking and currency system." He was right.

Then I read an Associated Press dispatch citing a Treasury Department statement showing that at the end of the fiscal year 1930 the money in circulation amounted to $224,464,419 less than that in circulation a year before. Also that the per capita circulation for June showed a decrease of 29 cents from the previous month and the lowest per capita circulation since June 30, 1914, when it was $34.92.

Because of the World War, and for the first time in its history, the United States has more than half the gold of the world. Yet its per capita circulation is only $2.38 more than in 1914. Then the dollar was more than double in purchasing power, and it could be borrowed for 4½ per cent. Now, by comparison, it is only 62 cents, for which one is compelled to pay anywhere from 6 to 10 per cent.

I am inclined to believe that history is repeating itself and that present conditions, to quote Mr. Coolidge again, are "complicated by a bad banking and currency system," from which there can be no permanent relief until the iniquitous McFadden banking law, denounced by its drafter and author, C. W. Collins, former Deputy Comptroller of the Currency, "as a relic of a bygone generation and no longer suited to the business needs of the country," is repealed and a sensible law enacted. W. J. D.

Disgusted Places Gutzon Borglum's Sculpture on a Par With Blatant Billboards.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I viewed with interest in today's Post the picture of the recently unveiled basrelief by Guston Borglum of "the gigantic head of George Washington carved on the side of Mount Rushmore in the Black Hills of South Dakota."

The thought occurred to me that if mountain sculpture should become a craze it would not be in keeping with the artistic fitness of things.

There is something tawdry in such a chiseling of the eternal rocks, no matter how clever the sculptured output might be in itself. It is akin to sacrilege.

For the delight of those who admire that sort of art a few specimens of the kind should be enough.

If, eventually, a school of landscape engineers is developed to ornament the mountainsides of the country with titanic statuary, the effect on devotees of nature will be shocking; just as bad in its way as that of the billboards we are at present anxious to get rid of.

I have no doubt that there are people who would consider a big picture of Washington on the dome of the Capitol a supermasterpiece.

DISGUSTED.

Dr. Dunbar Reiterates Demand for Suppression of Dangerous Fireworks.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your paper and its correspondents seem to be taking the lead in the fight against the legal murder of American citizens by fireworks on Independence Day.

About the middle of June I wrote the chief of police of this city, protesting against such unsafe celebration. He replied that he intended to enforce the laws of the District in that matter. A few days later I received from him a list of fireworks that were "verboten" and a list of those allowed.

The latter list began with sparklers allowed as "safe." The Post of July 5 of this year began the list of casualties with the account of a man in California blinded by a sparkler. A child also lost one eye by the same agent.

The shorter list of casualties this year probably is due to so many towns forbidding the use of uncontrolled fireworks.

We are trying to make our Capital City the most beautiful in the world. Let us make it the safest as a home town.

Plain Citizen Wonders What There Is to Hide in Regard to the London Naval Treaty.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that they are calling for secret papers and making a real kick in the Senate, I am puzzled.

I guess the trouble with us is that the people of the United States are supposed to know a whole lot about what is going on when it gets down to the matter of war or peace. It is natural enough that this should sometimes make it hard for our Government in dealing with countries where the people don't have so free a hand in making war or peace.

According to all accounts these countries have never been very fond of treaties made in the open, and so I will have to admit that it looks suspicious if there are papers which will not bear the light in the discussion of the London Naval Treaty.

At the same time what puzzles me some more is what secrets Japan and England may want to keep dark in connection with such a simple and friendly transaction.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE Nation's Capital as a popularity center for the origination of programs is shown in the report of A. E. Johnson, division engineer of NBC. During the first six months of this year programs consuming more than 241 hours were sent from Washington. This is 50 per cent more than for the same period last year.

The latest addition to the WRC announcing staff is Joseph W. Sweeney, 21 years old, of Clarendon, Va. He is a graduate of Gonzaga College, took a music course at Peabody in Baltimore, and plays the piano.

In addition to the morning performances, Phil Cook, beginning this evening, will be heard (WRC, 6:30 o'clock) each night.

DECLARING that radio is intended for a higher use than now made of it, Judge Ira E. Robinson, Federal Radio Commission, observed at Columbus, Ohio, that listeners "are becoming sick of commercial advertising given them hourly.

"Sales talks, price quoting and the like have become so prevalent that the very excess of the same will do good in reminding the people of radio's real province and worth," he said.

With the Senate at fever heat over the naval treaty and Stanley Baldwin talking to us from London today (WMAL—2:30 p. m.) on "Democracy" and Senator Joe Robinson, recently returned from England, holding a post-mortem on the "tariff" (WRC—12:45 p. m.) it would seem that they were trying to qualify for the Diplomatic Corps.

From present indications "Mystery House" (WRC—6 p. m. Sundays) may run along indefinitely.

WHAT radio needs are less excitable sports announcers. Also, as in the case of the Columbia announcer at the Arlington finish, some one who can tell what he is looking at without continually contradicting himself.

Announcement has been made by the family of the late Dr. James Harris Rogers, of Hyattsville, Md., that part of his laboratory equipment has been taken over by the Smithsonian Institution.

Dr. Rogers perfected a system of underground and undersea wireless telegraphy. By means of antennae placed at different depths he was able to hear reports from German officials on World War operations.

A DEVICE has been perfected by Prof. Frederick Bedell, of the physics department of Cornell University, in the hope it will be useful to the deaf in listening to broadcasts, by which listeners appear to "sip" sounds through straws.

The straws are long pieces of wood, whose sharp pencil-like points are placed on a small metal disc. The disc is a special microphone, transmitting its vibrations to the wood. By biting the other end of the stick lightly, otherwise inaudible sounds are heard.

"My device may enable afflicted persons to receive the benefits of radio heretofore denied them," Prof. Bedell explains. "There is hope for the deaf so long as their auditory nerves are not affected, and this applies to 90 per cent. The prospects for these people being able to hear are now the best in history."

A woman telephoned Columbia to ask if her 6-year-old daughter could be put on.

"What does she do?" the hostess inquired.

"She dances."

"We can not use dancers. Can she sing?"

"Of course not!" replied the mother, and hung up.

DAVID (referring to the French waiter)—"Why does he keep saying 'We! We!'"

Uncle Abe—"He gets that from Lindbergh."

Dare Interprets the Mode

A subtly elegant evening gown of black georgette. Note the silver paillette embroidery on the sides and back, and the lace underskirt. (Courtesy of Tollmann, Paris.)

Paris, July 13.

THE etiquette of the long evening glove—what is it? Our grandmothers could tell us—if you have one, a gram'ma, I mean, ask her what used to be the rules and regulations about long evening gloves. Do you wear them on the hands when you dance, or only on the arms? Do you take them off entirely when you eat—well, ask her what SHE did about these things, the while I tell you what YOU should do about them these days.

First of all, you MUST have evening gloves, long ones, to be really elegant. Surprising how unfinished and unelegant an evening ensemble can look without them! Expensive? Well, maybe, but as I have said before, anything that contributes to a woman's loveliness is not expensive as long as the standards of elegance are what they are. Too, one need not go in heavily for many colors in gloves, just a pair of long black ones, another white, and another that lovely pastel color called "chair" will do.

So-o-o-o, and you wear them ON your hands and ruffled loosely down, not smoothed up long and slick, even sometimes above the elbows, as grandmother did. This for the theater, for going to and from anywhere, and usually when you dance. In the theater you may loosen one or both of the hands, leaving them loose and hanging rather than tucked into the glove. For eating both hands must be loosened, and tucked up into the wrists, while for drinking only, the right-hand glove only is removed. Never, unless it is exceptionally warm, do you completely remove your long gloves, arms and all. For the lighter-colored gloves, remove the right hand for dancing, and leave it loose or tuck it up into the glove as you wish.

That's today—ask grandmother about yesterday!

By special request, I gathered together several leaflets on the subject of freshening up the house, paint tricks and whatnots, and threw them all together into a leaflet for this week. Better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for it, because it just might have something in it for you and your little nook of the world!

• • • •

Tollmann models have a dignity all Tollmann, as you no doubt have noticed from our illustrations of their models. And combining Tollmann with black georgette, that ever smart and ever flattering, you have a gown that you couldn't do anything else but love—couldst? There it is in the sketch, delightfully trimmed with silver paillettes, and slit a very little at the side to show a lace underskirt.

• • • •

Blondes, "redheads" and white-haired types—send an extra letter this week for the leaflet of your colors!

And remember to look for the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Washington Post.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CANCER."

IF July 14 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:40 a. m. to 10 a. m., 2 p. m. to 3:45 p. m., and 8 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p. m. and 10:30 p. m. to midnight.

A feast for the intellectual is predicted for this date, and a gala time for pleasure seekers—astrological conditions favor both. Research workers may begin to see the "light of day," and will renew hopes and efforts.

The child born on this July 14 should pass a high efficiency and mentality test. It will be personally extravagant and will cry for the best of everything. It will have definite literary tastes and it will not go through life without trying its hand at writing.

You play upon the harp of life as nearly as possible according to the laws of equity and justice, and as a result your life is a harmonious and beautiful thing. There is no cheating or chicanery in your scheme of living—you believe in the principle of the "square deal." You prove beyond a doubt that it is the person of probity and honesty who wins in the long run. Every one who trusts you—your honesty of purpose and integrity of character are of greater value than mere brilliance. You let who may be clever and plod along in your simple straight-forward way. You will never stoop to your successes—you do no double dealing.

You are never perplexed and worried as to which course to pursue, as you live your life to a principle. You sometimes think that your efforts to do right are so little appreciated, and the rewards so slight, that it does not pay, but you are so constituted that you can not change.

Your disposition is gentle, sociable and affectionate, charitable and humanitarian. You are not in the least sanctimonious, and you neither try to teach or preach. You believe in individual freedom and individual salvation and damnation. You strictly mind your own business.

Successful people born July 14:
1—Owen Wister, novelist.
2—Albert Hopkins, astronomer, Williams College Observatory.
3—Arthur Capper, senator.
4—Paul D. Cravath, lawyer.
5—William H. Burr, engineer.
6—W. Herbert Abbott, leather merchant.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

TRAP THE SNAIL AND COLLAR THE BEETLE.

DO not for one moment think that because you do not see snails, they are not around. These most loathsome of all garden pests each year, during July and August, do a great deal more harm than we generally attribute to them. Just because they are few in numbers and seldom in evidence in daylight, we are not apt to think very much about them. The only sure way to get rid of these crawlers is literally to trap them or to use a proprietary preparation and poison them.

Snail traps are the easiest possible things to make. All that is necessary is to take some empty vegetable cans from which the lids have been removed and with a nail or awl punch holes about the sides within a quarter of an inch of the tops. Now take some very thin string and lace it back and forth three or four times across the opening, so that the strings cross at right angles.

When the strings are loosely attached to the cans, sink them here and there in your flower borders. Do this so that the upper edge of each can, where the strings are attached, is even with the surface of the ground. When each trap is thus in place, it must be baited. Baiting, in this instance, means filling the can with water and sprinkling some cornflakes or other uncooked breakfast food over the surface of the strings and water. The snails, coming up to eat, creep out on the loose strings, fall into the water and are drowned.

Every few days it will be well to examine these cans and, when necessary, empty them. You will no doubt be surprised at the number of snails you will thus destroy.

Also about this time, when the in hundreds, seeking what they may devour—which in this case is your young aster growth. A few days is quite sufficient for those pests to devastate an entire bed of the healthiest asters.

If you have 1,000 asters I do not recommend your collaring them. This would be impracticable. But where you have possibly 50 plants—which is not a larger number than we usually find in a home garden—I do recommend making aster collars. These are placed about the main stem of each plant close to the ground, in fact the collar rests on the surface of the soil. Make these from tar paper, using the bottom of a drinking glass for a pattern. After cutting out a circle cut a V-shaped opening in much the same manner as you would remove the first piece from a pie. This opening makes it possible to slip the collar about the stem of the aster.

When the collars are in place make a mixture of Paris green, molasses and oatmeal. Mix the ingredients so that you have a thick, sticky mass. Then with a spatula or kitchen knife cover each collar to the thickness of one-quarter of an inch.

The beetles will be attracted by the oatmeal to partake of the mixture, and when they have eaten will be poisoned by the Paris green. This mixture can not be used where there are loose chickens or pet dogs or cats, because it is a deadly poison.

These aster collars can be made and attached in a couple of hours, and surely two hours is a short time when you consider that you are saving your entire crop of asters.

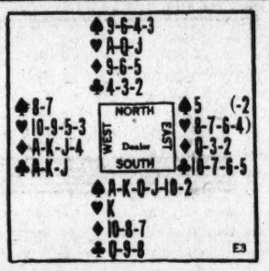
WORK ON BRIDGE



The above hand was played in a game of Contract. South bid two Spades, North three, and South four. South had but little strength in addition to that announced by his original bid; but with six solid Spades, a singleton King and a partner strong enough to jump, his four-bid was tempting.

In Auction Bridge if South had bid one Spade, he might have been doubled by West and East might have answered with Hearts; but it is hardly likely that South would have been forced higher than three Spades.

In the play West led his King of Diamonds with the hope of getting a signal from East; but he decided that East's Trey was not encouraging, so he abandoned Diamonds and led the Club King. When East played the Five, West thought that looked more like a signal and continued with his Ace and Jack of Clubs. South won the third Club with the Queen, exhausted the adverse trumps, put dummy in with the Heart and obtained two Diamond discards; so the Declarer lost only two Clubs and one Diamond and made game.

How should the adversaries have played the hand?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

It was absurd for West to assume that East's Diamond Trey could not be the start of a signal. Of course, South might have the Deuce and be attempting to deceive by false-carding with the Seven; but a player should not assume that any card is not a signal when a lower card of that suit is missing. With dummy's Deuce, Trey and Four of Clubs staring him in the face, West's assumption that East's Five might be a signal was even more absurd; and to cap the climax West continued with his Club Jack after East had played the Six on the second Club trick.

If West had led his Ace of Diamonds either at trick 2 or 3 to see if East were signaling in Diamonds, a third Diamond lead would have put East in to lead a Club through South's Queen toward West's remaining Ace-Jack, and West would have taken one more Club trick. With the hand played properly by the adversaries, the Declarer would take only seven tricks and be set three, instead of making four-odd—contract and game.

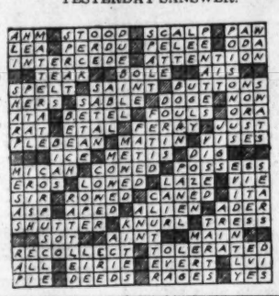
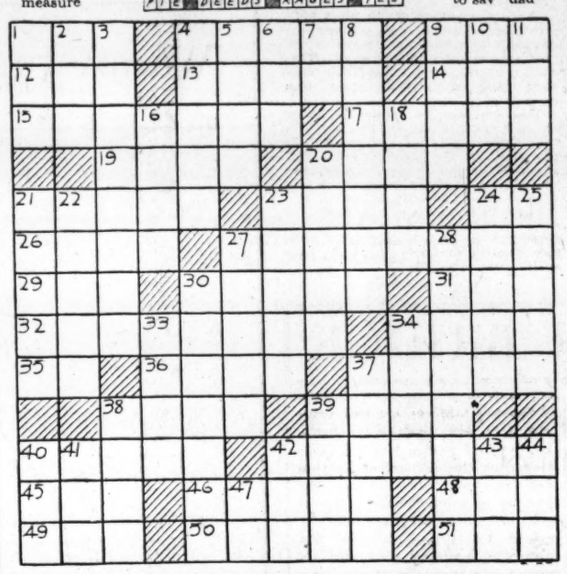
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.





Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Supporting a Man."

DEAR MISS M'DONALD: Just what do you think of the following husband: He asks a girl to marry him, and then adds, "We ought to be able to manage on our combined income." That was jolt No. 1.

They marry. (Yes, she was that simple.) They are married three weeks—or, rather, home from their trip three weeks—when he became rather cool, and when asked, explained that the trip cost money and the understanding was that both were to contribute to the finances. The girl offered to advance the rent, which was the immediate issue, whereupon he became enraged, told her she could hand over all but her daily expenses for fare and lunch or "call it off."

Now, the girl is a near relative of mine, and I am the only one she has told. Needless to say, she regards him as a highwayman and is really afraid of him, yet hates to go home and tell her people, who are very simple and old-fashioned, how badly she has been taken in. I say escape at once. What is your advice?

THERESE.

Escape—and how! It is appalling to think that girls, despite their vast opportunities, continue to listen to and to accept almost any proposition that includes the age-old "Mrs." tag! All other tags are overlooked in the general excitement. The tag "undesirable" on the man means nothing. He is undeniably a male of the species and he is talking marriage. It matters not that he is bargaining about marriage. It matters not that he is really asking to be assisted in the matter of supporting himself. The girl sees only the prospect of being Mrs. Whos-this, and forthwith stakes life, liberty and the life and liberty of any children unlucky enough to be hers.

Any one engaged in the business of advising girls can comprehend the feelings of poor Moses when he smashed the tablets of the Ten Commandments. People have not changed one whit since they so exasperated that earnest old man who was trying to help them to some semblance of order in the matter of living. The Ten Commandments were just ten very sensible rules of the game. But could the people see it? Not they.

Today, the few rules that are laid down by society are really designed to promote individual comfort, rather than to inflict any hardship. But they are ignored just the same. And the people who ignore them are the ones who suffer.

Girls know that society wisely ordains that the man support the woman—society understanding that the adult man who can not support a woman is, frankly speaking, not a man. But woman admitting her mistake is a poor excuse for accepting such an unspeakable arrangement, and no excuse for rushing the possibility of motherhood under such circumstances?

The man who accepts support from a woman, or demands money of any woman, should automatically thereby become a ward of the State in some institution. He does not belong in general circulation.

Whale Strikes Liner; Blood Reddens Ocean

New York, July 13 (A.P.).—Passengers of the liner Samaria, which docked today, were still excited about a fish story enacted before their eyes Friday.

A whale of mammoth proportions swam alongside the ship, dived below the surface and bumped its head violently against the ship's sharp prow. In a second the sea for a hundred feet around was red with blood. The passengers believe the whale was killed.

German Fascists Fight; Several Are Injured

Albersdorf, Germany, July 13 (A.P.).—Diehard Fascists and seceding Fascists fought furiously today at a meeting held by the latter.

The Diehards, who belonged to the group headed by Adolf Hitler, one time leader of the Bavarian "Putsch," rushed on the platform and beat the speakers with blackjacks and steel switches.

A number of those in the audience were seriously injured. The police were powerless.

"Performance Unequalled-Costs Less Per Mile"
Says Mott Motors, Inc.

MOTT MOTORS INCORPORATED
Distributors
SIXES HUPMOBILE EIGHTS
1520-14th Street, N.W. Washington, D.C.

TAKE a minute to read this letter--it will pay you--pay you in better performance--pay you in lower cost per mile.

Mr. Mott, President of Mott Motors, Inc., Washington Hupmobile distributors, says among other things:

1. Recommending Amoco-Gas has gotten him better satisfied customers.
2. Amoco-Gas delivers performance unequalled by any fuel regardless of price.
3. Although Amoco-Gas costs more per gallon, it costs less per mile.

Mr. Mott knows automobiles. It's his business to know motor fuels.

And it will pay you, too, regardless of make of car you drive, to use Amoco-Gas.

The American Oil Company,
South Washington, Va.

Gentlemen:

It has been our custom, - and shall I say pleasure, - to recommend Amoco-Gas to all purchasers of Hupmobiles.

Pleasure should be the word because we have found that recommending Amoco has repaid us many times by creating satisfied customers. The new Hupmobiles, sixes and eights, are wonderful cars, and with the use of Amoco-Gas, they have no equal in their respective price classes.

We have found that Amoco-Gas delivers performance unequalled by any other fuel regardless of price. And we have found that, although it does cost more per gallon, more miles to the gallon and reduced operating expenses make it cost less per mile.

So I'm going to say that it has been our pleasure to recommend Amoco-Gas and that we will continue to do so.

Yours very truly,
Thos. T. Mott

THE GIRL IN THE AIR - -

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

CHAPTER THIRTY.

Janet left the trolley at Exchange place with her mind definitely made up on one point: she would not go back to the airport. It would be impossible to continue as Tolbert's stenographer, even for a few days, for she felt that she could not endure another struggle with Dick, an inevitability if she went on working in the same building with him.

No, she could not go back, and she would tell Tolbert as much when he called tonight. And she would tell him why. There was no point in hiding from him what he ought to know concerning his son's uncertain affections. . . . Uncertain? She wanted to believe that Dick was simply fickle; but though she insisted that this was the case, she knew now that Hugh had been right; Dick did not love Helen; he was more her slave than her lover, happier away from her than with her, but hopelessly under her spell. And she knew just as well that Dick did love her, Janet . . . she who had told him the first hour they were together that she would marry the boss' son.

But that was all over now. She never wanted to see Dick again. If there had been any love for him in her heart, she knew that it would have responded to his pathetic appeal back there in the car. . . . She had only felt sorry for him. In a sense, she was a little disappointed that this was so, for she had always thought of love as something that survived every conflict, surmounted every obstacle; and she had once been so sure of her love for Dick.

Finding herself at the corner of Bank and Grand streets, Janet thought of Bernice and strolled into Cooney's laundry for a chat. But it was Bernice's afternoon off. She used the telephone there to call her at her home, and the one and only Bernice gave three rousing cheers when she recognized Janet's voice.

"Can you come on up to the house, Jan? I'm all by my lonesome. I've got worlds to tell you and a million questions to ask. . . . Will you come, right away?"

And Janet went, feeling that a half hour with Bernice would be a tonic for her worn nerves. She envied Bernice, holding on to the same old job, running with the same old crowd, dreaming the same old dreams . . . reaching for nothing beyond her immediate grasp, making the most of what she had . . . and happy.

Then she was reprimanding herself for thinking as if she were not happy. Of course she was happy. With all the worry and heartache that had come to her since she left the employment bureau, she was achieving her goal. Wasn't she marrying an adorable man who was deeply in love with her and who would spare nothing to add to her happiness? What if he was twice her age, and more; he amounted to something, didn't he? Wealth and social position . . . those were the things she had wanted . . . and she was getting them. What more could she ask?

Bernice received her with old-time enthusiasm, squeezed her until it hurt, all but smothered her with kisses, and dragged her into the living room to the accompaniment of a running fire of questions.

"Did you clean forget I was alive? Do you think you can throw over your old friends just because you're on the up and up? Don't you know Henry's been eating his heart out because you haven't been to see him?"

Janet threw her coat over the back of a chair and slumped into an overstuffed seat before the open grate. "I haven't been to see Henry," she admitted, "but how did you know?"

"Gosh, I ought to; I've been keeping him company two and three times a week since the big bums locked him up. What's wrong with those slobs out at the airport, Jan? They ought to know Henry hasn't done anything wrong."

"I think they do know it now," Janet told her. "They've run into a lot of information in the last 24 hours. I've an idea Henry will be out pretty soon."

Bernice was radiant. "Do you really think so, Jan? Gee, but that'd be great! He's a peach, honey. The first time I went to see him I was just curious. But there's something about that boy that—that gets you. That's the truth, Jan. I've got to like him a whole lot since I've been going to the jail."

"Hmm! Is this another romance? I begin to suspect Henry hasn't entirely wasted his time since they arrested him."

Bernice was blushing, almost a phenomenon in Bernice. "I don't know whether it's a romance or not; but Henry could put a rope around my neck and lead me all over the pasture. He's changed a lot, Jan. I guess he's had a lot of time to think, and about all he talks about is his mother. He says he wouldn't have got into trouble if he'd listened to her."

Janet asked, "Has he been keeping up with what's happened at the field?"

"He doesn't know a thing, honey. They won't let him have the newspapers and it's little enough I can tell him. I read all about that boarder being murdered at his house and his mother tied up and gagged; but I couldn't tell him that. He's worried enough about her as it is."

Bernice shook some coal on the fire and poked at the bottom of the grate with a stick. "Why didn't you go to see him, Jan?" she asked abruptly. "He told me the other day he thought you'd have been one of the first to visit him."

"If I'd gone every time I wanted to," Janet replied, "I'd have given you keen competition; but——Oh, I can't tell you the story now, Bernie. It'd take all day, and besides, I haven't any right to say anything about it. But I can tell you this much, if I'd gone to see Henry I'd have furnished possible grounds for a suspicion they had and it wouldn't have helped either of us. . . . Once or twice, though, I almost went anyway. I had an idea that if I could get to Henry I might get him to talk. I never will understand why he refused to tell the detectives the truth the night Belter was killed."

"I thought he told them everything except where he was between the time he left the airport and the time he got back home that night."

"He did," Janet agreed; "but that was the one thing he should have told them. He wouldn't try to prove an alibi and since he and Belter had had a row of some kind, they just figured he must have done the shooting."

"Oh, sure; they would!" Bernice said venomously. "But listen, honey," —she pulled her chair up close to Janet's and lowered her voice—"I don't know where he was that night any more than you do; but I'll tell you something he told me . . . I was asking him why he didn't come clean and tell them where he was after he left the airport, and he said, 'Because I'm not ready to die . . . If I stay in jail long enough they'll find out the truth and let me out; but if I tell where I was that night and why, my life won't be worth a nickel.'"

"Hmm; that's a funny thing to say. What was he talking about, do you suppose?"

"I'll bite. But that's what he said. I figure he was doing something wrong for somebody else that night and that whoever it was threatened to blow him up if he squealed."

"Do you suppose——" Janet began; then fell silent . . . "Let's talk about something pleasant, Bernice. I've been hearing nothing but murder and violence for weeks."

But the suspicion that had cropped up as she talked with Bernice was not to be so easily disposed of; and as she walked home in the dusk, after a long afternoon of exciting chatter, she came to it once more.

Henry had been threatened . . . by whom? . . . when? . . . If, she reasoned, he had been threatened at all, it must have been between the time of his departure from the administration building prior to Belter's death and his return in response to her telephone call. In which case the threat had come from some one not present when Belter's dead body was discovered but who knew he had been murdered.

Naturally Janet thought of Crell. Who more likely than he? Having dispatched Belter with a bullet, had he gone back to Mrs. Frenda's and waited up for Henry? . . . That did not, to be sure, explain where Henry had been or what he had been doing, but it suggested the possibility that Henry might feel free to talk when informed of Crell's death.

She decided to put the matter up to Tolbert this very night and urge him to act upon this fresh information . . . Immediately she shook her head in opposition to such a plan. Not tonight would she speak to Tolbert about it . . . Tonight of all nights she must put everything out of her mind and heart but the one thing Tolbert was coming to hear.

How incongruous it all seemed . . . Tolbert, president of the Great Eastern, her boss, a man of consequence of his world, coming to hear his stenographer say that she would marry him . . . She dilated upon his virtues, told herself again and again how tremendously happy she was . . . and was strangely puzzled because that happiness seemed to express itself in words only.

But she would not admit this absence of proper emotion. "It's there," she insisted stubbornly. "I've been through so much lately that my feelings won't register, I suppose. But I know I'm happy. I'd have to be when I'm getting all I've ever yearned for . . ."

When, a little later, she walked into the house and found Hugh talking to her father in the living room, she was conscious of a little wave of pleasant anticipation . . . Here was some one she could tell and be sure of a sympathetic response. Good old reliable Hugh . . . He had not been enthusiastic about her affair with Dick; but as she knew now, he had tried to warn her for her own good. But he knew Tolbert well enough to appreciate him as a man of honor. He might, of course, be a little shocked, but, better than any one else, he would understand.

"I've just discovered," Hugh told her, "that your father is an authority on the Spanish-American War."

Mr. Decker laughed heartily. "Authority, nothing," he protested. "All I know about it is what I've read in that book I showed you; but there's plenty to know in that if you do any thinking for yourself as you go along."

"You've certainly told me more in five minutes," Hugh insisted, "than I've ever learned out of school histories. My dad was with Hobson and I've always been interested, of course. But I never got quite so close to it before."

"He ought to know something about it," Janet agreed. "He lives with that book . . . I'm sorry I didn't know you were coming," she added. "I've been spending the afternoon with an old friend of mine, talking about everything and nothing . . . Have you been here long?"

"I better be seeing after that furnace," Mr. Decker said by way of excusing himself. "You can't talk war around Janet, Mr. Temple; she's a pacifist." He went off, chuckling, not giving Janet an opportunity to reply to this unfounded charge.

Hugh assured her that he had been waiting for her but ten or fifteen minutes. "I've been splendidly entertained," he declared. "Your father says he never reads anything but the one book, but I'm forced to question it; he's remarkably well informed."

"Modesty is a family trait," she grinned; "you may have noticed it."

Hugh's laugh died rather abruptly, and Janet, already curious as to what had brought him here, prepared herself for unpleasant news.

"Nothing could please me more than to know that this is a purely social call," she told him; "but being a woman, I need to be assured."

"It is a social call," Hugh replied, unconvincingly. "But I must combine business with pleasure . . . The detectives have made a discovery at Mrs. Frenda's that can interest no one more than you and me."

"What is it this time; another love triangle, with you and me involved?"

"That would be as absurd as the cock-and-bull story about you and young Frenda, wouldn't it? . . . No, they've found positive evidence that the man who held me captive and who tried to get you into the machine in New York has been in Mrs. Frenda's cellar."

"Hugh! . . . Not Three-Fingers?"

Hugh nodded. "In the first place, they found two distinct impressions of human hands, one in the coal dust on the cement floor, the other on the cellar window ledge, presumably where he got in, and in both cases two fingers were missing from the right hand. . . . And they also found, under the same window, as if it had fallen as our friend crawled out, a brown felt hat with a tiny red feather in the band. . . . Remember it?"

"Of course I do," Janet declared. "Then it was Three-Fingers who murdered Crell, wasn't it?"

Hugh shrugged his broad shoulders. "That I can't say . . . I'm satisfied he's been in the house in the last few days. As I reason it out, he got in through the window and in dropping lost his balance and fell forward on his hands. That accounts for the hand prints on the floor. . . . Then he must have heard someone coming and left hurriedly by the same window, for the impression of the hands there point out. The window isn't very large and I suppose his hat was knocked off as he jumped up. Being in a hurry to get out, he didn't bother to go back for it. . . . Interesting, isn't it?"

Janet agreed that it was. Highly interesting. But would the police be able to find him?

She didn't put the question to Hugh, knowing that he had greater faith in the competence of the detectives than she had. Secretly she suspected that this thing would go on forever, that they would find Three-Fingers murdered somewhere and start out on a search for still another criminal, ultimately finding this hypothetical murderer a victim of still another, and so on, without end. . . . What a mess!

"I certainly appreciate your coming to tell me about it," Janet said presently. "I think you've been avoiding me lately."

"Frankly," Hugh told her, "I came because Tolbert sent me; but I thought I might just as well tell you what had happened out there today while I was here. . . . . I deny, however, that I've been avoiding you; seems to me it's the other way round."

But Janet did not hear this last. "You say Mr. Tolbert sent you?" she asked.

Hugh pointed to the center table. "He told me to be sure to deliver that immediately I came to the city. I was afraid I'd forget it if you didn't come in before I left, so I put it there and called you father's attention to it."

Janet got up from her chair nervously and gazed at the white envelope on which her name was written in Tolbert's rather vigorous hand . . . . She picked it up and went back to her chair, telling herself that it was merely a reminder that he might arrive late. . . . but half afraid to open it. . . . .

"Do you mind?" she asked at last, slipping a finger under the fold.

"Go right ahead," Hugh replied genially, and reached for Mr. Decker's Illustrated History of the Spanish American War.

Janet took the single sheet of note paper from the envelope and opened it slowly. Then she read:

"Janet, darling—

"The detectives have assured me that I will not be needed again before the day after tomorrow and I think it best to fly up to Boston tonight, returning tomorrow night. I had planned for Temple to go with me, but Dick has just come back to the field and has persuaded me to let him go instead. He insists that Temple will be needed at the field, and I suppose he is right.

"All of which means, of course, that I must wait another 24 hours before I can come to you. But I shall be constantly thinking of you, my dear, and looking forward with the keenest anticipation to your answer, which must, God willing, be favorable to your devoted RICHARD.

"P. S.—I shall call you immediately upon our arrival tomorrow night. R."

Janet put the note back in its envelope and proceeded to tear it into little bits. "Hugh," she said after a time, "do you believe in premonitions?"

Hugh, observing her pallor, smiled easily. "Of course not," he declared. "Nor do you."

"I don't know," she said slowly. "It may be plain nerves, but I've a strong feeling that something dreadful is going to happen."

The Ford is a strong and capable truck

WHEREVER there is material of any kind to be hauled, you are likely to see Ford trucks at work. You will find them at many a shipping-platform, or meet them on the way. And see them climbing ramps, out of excavations.

You will notice Ford trucks where business is swift . . . and in rural sections, where strict economy often dictates the type of transportation. For the Ford truck is excellently adapted to a wide variety of purposes.

A number of new features increase the usefulness of the Ford truck, adding as well to its capable performance and rugged strength. Among them are the spiral-bevel-gear rear axle; the two optional gear-ratios; the larger brakes; the heavier front axle and spring; the 4-speed transmission, and the dual rear wheels available at small additional cost.

Standard bodies for the Ford truck, which are the panel, stake, and platform, are mounted on the chassis with 131½" wheelbase. A chassis with 157" wheelbase is available for carrying light but bulky loads.

Bodies are strong and good-looking, with loading space of carefully planned dimensions. The stake and platform types can be equipped with either open or enclosed cabs. Go to your Ford dealer, and learn how long and well, and at what low cost, the Ford truck will serve your purpose.

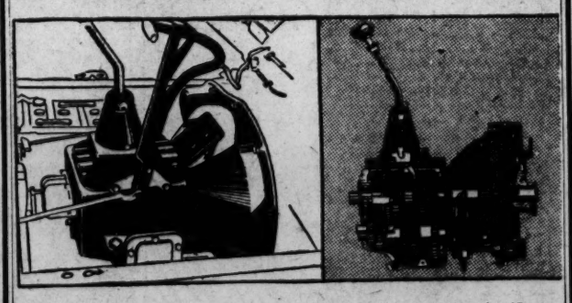
New features of the FORD TRUCK



A 4-SPEED transmission contributes to the able performance of the Ford truck, providing a wide, flexible range of speed and power. Four speeds forward enable you to use the power of the Ford engine with an unusual degree of efficiency.

When it is important to save time, you can rely upon the Ford truck for speed.

When you need abundant power—to pull a heavy load out of a pit, or to get over soft ground — you will find the 4-speed transmission a big advantage.

Other features of the Ford truck increase its reliability under every condition, adding greatly to its value. Come in and let us show them to you.

President Roosevelt paid high tribute to the services of Gen. Leonard Wood in a speech before the Associated Physicians of Long Island. He also said that when the Panama Canal is finished it will be a standing memorial to the medical profession, for without their fight to conquer the yellow fever the canal could never have been constructed.

Ten men, one woman and her baby were killed by a Negro while on a ship bound for the Honduran Coast. The Negro robbed the captain of $1,400 and then killed every one on the boat. He was captured and the natives most likely tortured him to death.

An investigation was ordered by the District Attorney of New York to find out if the prominent people who gave $500 as their subscription to a well-known magazine did so legitimately or whether they were blackmailed into doing so. One agent of the magazine was arrested.

Announcement was made that the large structure being built at Georgetown College, known as the new South Building, was to be known as the Ida M. Ryan Hall and that the $125,000 necessary to construct it was donated by Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan, wife of the financer.

When the cable of a hoisting derrick, on the site of the House of Representative's annex, came in contact with a live wire, one workingman was killed and one injured.

After six years in Paris, looking for the grave of John Paul Jones, and the later finding and identification of the same, Gen. Horace Porter returned to New York.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

LAUNDERING LACE CURTAINS.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

Measure both dimensions of the curtains before laundering, in order that they may be stretched to the correct size.

Use the general method with the following precautions:

Handle the curtains carefully in the suds, squeezing and working them rather than rubbing. Many curtains that appear strong have been greatly weakened by the action of light and go to pieces when washed. If a machine is used, inclose the curtains in a net or muslin bag.

Rinse and blue white curtains as in washing ordinary fabrics.

Cream ecru and brown curtains may be retinted. Add a strong solution of tea or coffee, or a combination of the two, slowly, to hot water until the desired tint is produced when tested on a piece of muslin. Brown cotton dyes can be used in very weak solutions, and should be tested on a sample for shade. Remove the curtians as soon as the desired shade is obtained.

Starch the curtains if desired, or, better still, use gelatin or gum arabic as a stiffener.

Dry curtains in stretcher, or spread a sheet on the floor, mark off the desired size and pin the curtains to it, stretching where necessary. Stretchers that do not form scallops where the pins are inserted are best for straight edged curtains.

WASHINGTON: MONDAY, JULY 14, 1930. 11

NATS BOW TO TIGERS, 5-4; DROP TO SECOND PLACE

Pegler

THE highly commercial and monopolistic aspect of the baseball industry looms so big oftentimes, what with elderly magnates camping in the plush hotel chairs at their business sessions, that one is likely to lose sight of the main recommendation of the organized game. That is this:

In the baseball industry the customer is offered the highest degree of skill, the most earnest competition and the most efficient conduct of the sport, under the most comfortable circumstances for the least money.

Horse racing is the most expensive sport of all from the standpoint of the spectator. I believe a few tracks do offer admission at a price of $1.10, but these tickets admit the holder only to accommodations which are distinctly steerage, where, if he has any pride, he feels that he is being gazed down upon by the aristocracy like an immigrant on the lower deck of a ship. In New York the cost of admission, transportation to and from the track, and a sodden wienerwurst encased in a stale roll for luncheon amounts to $10.

What Baseball Fan Can Do for $2.

In any major league city the common customer may go to and from a ball game, buy his ticket and offend his interior with a bag of peanuts and a pint of some fizzy abomination in a wide selection of flavors and colors, for a total of less than $2.

To attend any of the large open golf tournaments the customer must reckon on an expense of $10 at least from home to home, including $3.30 for his ticket, at least $2.50 for a meal that might retail profitably at 75 cents and the hire of a dilapidated hack chauffeured by the village half wit of the suburb in which the show happens to take place.

From the customer's viewpoint intercollegiate championship football is a professional show, too, for to him it means a ticket at $3.50 or $4, a variable outlay for a pint of the particular kind of moonshine common to this section of the country, one or two meals on the road, and 50 cents for a program in which the banal words of the varsity songs and yells and scratchy drawings depicting he-and-she jokes lifted from old copies of the humorous magazines are hidden among the complimentary ads from the local haberdasher, undertaker, smoke shop and Mbe, the old reliable second-hand man.

Practice Game Distinctly Classified.

The cost of attending the minor football games is slightly less, but at best it is twice as much as the whole price of going to, seeing, enjoying and returning from a major league ball game, all of which are, theoretically, championship games, figuring in the final reckoning of the standings.

When a major league team engages a club of inferior rating on an off day in the league schedule the game is distinctly classified as a practice or exhibition contest, but in intercollegiate football the practice game is so regarded only in the event that the major team happens to lose. If the big team goes through the season undefeated, the inferior quality of the minor opponents, usually two or three in number, is forgotten, and the coach, players, undergrades and alumni accept full honor for a career of unblemished triumphs.

The strangest whimsy of the sport customer is, however, that he habitually pays the highest prices of all to attend shows which promise the least in sportsmanship, honesty, fairness, and comfort, meaning the prize fights. Mr. Rickard elevated the cost of tickets for heavyweight championships to $55 and had no trouble selling out the ringside sections, although the public well realized that not one heavyweight championship bout in the last 20 years had been fought strictly within the ring and without the interference of racketeers, lawyers or politicians. In fact, Mr. Rickard's difficulty lay in marketing the $20 and $30 seats for these productions, owing to the customers' unwillingness to sit elsewhere than in the ringside pews.

Bad Bouts Increase At Regular Prices.

Proportionately, the ringside seats for lesser productions in all the large cities have been priced at from $7.50 to $22.50, and these prices have remained firm in good times and bad for years, although the proportion of

Macks' 17-Hit Attack Routs St. Louis

Mahaffey Scatters 8 Hits as Athletics Win by 12-1.

Simmons Makes 21st Homer; Game Is Clinched in 1st.

Special to The Washington Post.

ST. LOUIS, July 13.—Philadelphia's Elephants regained first place in the American League race today by trouncing the Browns here, 12 to 1, while Washington was losing in Detroit. The men of Mack now hold a 5-point advantage over their rivals.

The Athletics picked on weak Brownie pitching for seventeen hits, including four doubles, a triple and Al Simmons' twenty-first home run of the season. Simmons, Dykes and Mahaffey totaled more hits than the entire Brownie Team. They had ten, Dykes getting two doubles and two singles, Simmons two singles besides his home run, and Mahaffey three singles.

Mahaffey in winning his eighth game of the season as against only three defeats, held the Browns to eight hits, all singles. He was deprived of a shut-out in the third inning when Gullic scored on his own single, a single by Hoishouser and an infield out.

Macks Score 5 In First.

The Mackmen counted five runs in the first inning on Bishop's triple, an infield out, Simmons' single, two bases on balls, a double by Dykes and Boley's single. These runs were off Dick Coffman, who was knocked out in the third, when the A.'s ran up four more runs on Simmons' homer, singles by Miller and Dykes, Boley's double and Mahaffey's single.

The last two hits in the third were made off Holshouser, who yielded a run in the fourth on Cochrane's base on balls, his steal of second and Miller's single. Philadelphia's last two runs went over in the seventh on singles by Dykes and Bishop, a couple of infield outs and a double by Haas.

Cleveland, July 13 (A.P.).—Cleveland defeated Boston in the second game of the series here today, 11 to 3. The game was called in the middle of the seventh because of rain.

The Indians sewed up the game in the first inning with five runs.

Scarritt was taken out of the game in the first with an injured finger. It was hurt when he attempted to make a shoe string catch of Jamieson's double.

One of the longest home runs made this season at League Park was hit by Morgan to the deep center field.

$25,000 Race Will Draw Star Field

Blue Larkspur, Victorian, Donnay and Others Ready.

Sun Beau Expected to Give 3-Year-Old Star a Run.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Next Saturday patrons of Arlington Park are going to see a weight-for-age race, the like of which has not been staged on this side of the Atlantic in a quarter of a century. Save as to distance it will be reminiscent of the best revivals of the Ascot Gold Cup, the Grand Prix de Paris.

There are only two other weight-for-age races on the American calendar, the Saratoga Cup, a gallop of one mile and a quarter, and the Jockey Club Gold Cup, an affair of 2 miles. The Saratoga Cup goes back to 1865. The Jockey Club Gold Cup was instituted in 1920. There used to be a lot of weight-for-age specials in American racing. The others were abandoned one by one because the crazy exploitation of 2-year-olds killed off prematurely the horses that should have been reserved for them.

The Arlington Cup will have an added money value of $25,000. With a field of eight competing the gross will be $34,300, with $4,000, $2,000 and $1,000 for the second, third and fourth horses. There are 53 eligibles.

Potential starters are the half brothers Gallant Fox and Petee Wrack, last named winner of a Travers revival at 3, a Philadelphia, a Metropolitan, a Merchants and Citizens and a Twin City at 4, and a Suburban at 5; the redoubtable Gallant Knight, also Blue Larkspur, Caruso, Sun Beau, Misstep, Lativich and The Nut. Victorian and Donnay are possibilities. Victorian is going splendidly again after a let up that began on the morrow of his triumph at Agua Caliente in the first Agua Caliente Handicap, which netted him nearly $99,000.

The participation of Gallant Fox seems certain after his Classic victory of last Saturday. He came to Chicago with the Cup as well as the Classic in view. His weight and the weight of other 3-year-olds next Saturday will be 116. The 4-year-olds and older horses must pack 126 each. There won't be any allowances for geldings. It is a good bet Gallant Fox will do well. He has been right along. A tough colt, this son of Sir Gallahad and Margurite, but no tougher than his big brother Petee, whose daddy is Wrack.

It has been for the Arlington Cup that Blue Larkspur and Sun Beau have been pointing all season and their readiness for their best performances has been recently demonstrated. Blue Larkspur never ran a better race than his Stars and Stripes Handicap, which he won in 1:49 and a fraction, setting a new Arlington mark for a mile and a furlong. And Misstep and Sun Beau were at his heels. He came out of that race in fine condition, and Edward Riley Bradley and Dick Thompson are burning for a go with him at Gallant Fox.

Thompson, remembering vividly how Blue Larkspur won renewals of the Withers and Belmont Stakes last season and the first Arlington Classic, refuses to concede that Gallant Fox is the greatest American 3-year-old since Man o' War. It is with reluctance that he admits that Man o' War had anything on his Black Servant colt.

William Irvine predicts that Sun Beau will run a smarter race in the cup than he did in the Stars and Stripes and probably the big Sun Briar colt will not disappoint. In the past Sun Beau has improved as the seasons have advanced. He handled Misstep and the formidable Diavolo cleverly last fall in the second Hawthorne Gold Cup race, stepping a mile and a quarter in 2:01 3-5. Misstep, iron son of Upset and St. Theresa, was about as good in the Stars and Stripes as he had been in any previous race of his truly brilliant career.

Cecilton, Md., July 13.—Though Frank Briston continued his brilliant work both at bat and on the mound for the local club of the Chesapeake Bay League, he failed to stave off a 13-to-1 defeat by the Kennedyville Club here today in a tilt that resolved itself into a pitchers' battle with Dill Loller, of the visiting outfit on the winning end.

FRENCH WINS OVER ROBINS BY 1 TO 0

Pirates Take Duel as Engle Scores on Infield Out.

BROOKLYN, July 13 (A.P.).—Larry French stopped the forward rush of the Brooklyn Robins today, nosing out Jim Elliott, 1 to 0, in a pitcher's duel, although Pittsburgh got only four hits while the Robins piled up nine.

The only score of the game came in the seventh inning. Engle led off with a single, Finn was pulled over to second on a hit-and-run play and Hemsley hit a single through the hole sending Engle to third. The Pirate shortstop scored on P. Waner's infield out.

Larson Beats American In Denmark Track Play

Copenhagen, Denmark, July 19 (A.P.).—George Bullwinkle, of the College of the City of New York, was beaten in the 800-meter run of an athletic meet here today by the Dane, Albert Larson. Bullwinkle, covering the distance in 1 minute 57 seconds, finished a full second behind the winner. Pete Bowen, Ed Hamm and Steve Anderson, touring Europe with Bullwinkle and Tommy Warne, of Northwestern, all won their events against picked athletes from Denmark, Sweden and Hungary. The king was among the enthusiastic spectators and personally congratulated the Americans.

The feature race is the American Racing Derby for $25,000, which will be run Tuesday afternoon. The Exchange Club Purse of $10,000 will be decided Wednesday. Thirty-one entries are listed for the derby. Tomorrow's card calls for four races— a 2:18 trot, an open trot, a 2:15 pace and a 2:12 pace.

EASTERN CLUB WINS.

Special to The Washington Post.

Easton, Md., July 13.—Easton defeated Chestertown today in a close and exciting game by score of 8 to 7 before the largest crowd that has witnessed a ball game at Federal Park. The game was featured by heavy hitting by both teams. Both Carter and Sparks pitched fine ball. The game was won in Easton's last half of the ninth inning by good hitting and base running.

Atlanta Eagerly Awaiting Bobby Jones' Return Today

ATLANTA, Ga., July 13 (A.P.).—The king will come home tomorrow and hear the cheers of his friends and the whistle of his young son. He will ride in triumph through the streets and receive all the homage a grateful city can pay him.

Then, Tuesday, he will lay aside his war clubs for a while and become Robert Tyre Jones, jr., lawyer and banker.

He will bring with him the cups he won in the British open and amateur golf tournaments and the cup he retained in the American open, just ended in Minneapolis.

His friends and neighbors have planned a celebration such as this city has never seen. It will be democratic, although the king will be entertained. Down here he is Bob, or Bobby, and although a prince has honored him and the world acclaimed him for the greatest achievement in golf history, it now is his home town's turn, and Atlanta will make the most of welcoming its hero.

He has been away since spring. His 5-year-old daughter has many new paper dolls he hasn't seen, and his 3-year-old son can whistle now.

"I wish my daddy would come on home," his son said. "I want him to hear me whistle."

Bobby's train will arrive tomorrow morning, escorted to the city limits by a squadron of airplanes. He will leave his train at the outskirts of the city, and his first public appearance will be downtown, where a parade will form.

He will ride to the City Hall, and there Mayor I. N. Ragsdale will give him a scroll and a gold key to the city. The parade will pass in review. All military organizations and civic bodies in town will participate.

There even will be several hundred Negro caddies in the parade. Most of them know "Mister Jones" and have carried his clubs.

Most of the business houses here will be closed and it will be a general holiday.

After the parade and celebration, Bobby will go home with his mother and father and wife and two children.

Theer he will rest from his campaigns until his office calls him, and then he will try to play par with briefs and worry with the bunkers of the law.

ITALY BEATS JAPAN IN TENNIS

Earns Right to Face U. S. in Davis Cup Play.

By THOMAS T. TOPPING.

GENOA, Italy, July 13 (A.P.).—The potent racquet of Baron Humbert L. de Morpurgo carried Italy into the interzone finals of Davis Cup tennis competition today for the second time in three years.

Playing in his finest form, the Italian ace swept Yoshiro Ohta, of Japan, off his feet in straight sets to enable the Italians to win the series, 3 matches to 2. De Morpurgo, giving Ohta only three games all told, won by scores of 6—0, 6—2, 6—1.

Earlier in the day Takeichi Harada, who had beaten De Morpurgo in singles on Friday, conquered Georgia de Stefani in straight sets, 6—2, 7—5, 7—5, to deadlock the series at two victories apiece.

Qualify to Meet U. S. Team.

Italy's triumph qualified De Morpurgo and his mates for the interzone finals against the United States at Paris Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The winner of this series will gain the right to meet France, holder of the cup for three years, in the challenge round at Paris July 25, 26 and 27.

De Morpurgo, who plans to retire from international tennis competition after this year, played a brilliant all-round game that held Ohta helpless. The baron showed no signs of the illness which was reported to have handicapped his play against Harada on Friday. He raced through the first set without the loss of a game, allowing Ohta only 6 points in the first five games and only 11 in the entire set. The Japanese put up a little better defense in the next two sets, but at no time was he dangerous.

Harada Displays Form.

Harada, playing a high-grade game all the way, gave De Stefani a tennis lesson in their match. Harada was superior to the Italian in every de-

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

Special to The Washington Post.

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, July 13.—Two snappy double plays wiped Washington lead-off men off of the base paths in both the first and second innings. After Myer had opened the game with a walk, Alexander completed the double killing by taking Gehringer's pivot throw on the half-bounce, while, following Harris' opening single in the second, Gehringer went over toward second to make a sensational stop of Judge's hot one, starting the play which Koenig and Alexander completed.

Jones got himself into real trouble in the alien first when he walked two in a row after Funk had singled with one dead. On the next play, a great peg by Harris, following his catch of McManus' fly, prevented the run from scoring.

Alexander gave Spencer a hit and helped the Nats in their three-run rally in the third by not being on first to take Koenig's throw of the catcher's bunt. This let Bluege advance from first.

Sam West came in fast to make a neat catch of Koenig's short fly opening the home second.

In the fourth, Gehringer raced over behind second to scoop Judge's grasser out of the dirt for a brilliant play. It looked like a sure hit for the Nat captain when the ball left the bat.

Opening the fifth, Burke's near Texas leaguer gave Stone a chance to come in fast for a fine catch, while Johnson ended this round by tearing back and across to the foul line to haul down Cronin's drive, which had an "extra base" label on it. Rice was on first when this latter catch was made and would have brought home the run needed to knot the string at the time but for Johnson's fine catch.

Bluege started a fast double play which prevented McManus' single from helping the Tigers any in round 5. He hurried in fast for Koenig's bounder and shot the ball to Myer with a rifle-like peg, the latter having plenty of time to get the ball to first ahead of the batter.

After Harris had opened the sixth via the four-ball route by fouling off the good ones and taking the bad ones Judge also became a stroller but on four successive balls. West then followed with a single on which Harris should have scored, but he apparently was the only one in the park who thought that the ball might have been caught and played safe, getting no farther than third.

Manush May Be Delayed In Returning to Line-Up

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

Navin Field, Detroit, Mich., July 13. Outfielder Heinie Manush, who has been nursing an injured leg, took a mild workout before today's game and is hopeful that he will be able to get back into the line-up tomorrow. There are cases when even doctors disagree and that of Manush is one of them.

The physician who has been treating the big fly chaser here declares that no ligaments or muscles are torn and that Heinie's ailment is due to an infection, the result of a bruise which had not healed properly.

Trainer Mike Martin, on the other hand, who is rated as quite an authority on injuries of this kind, having worked on them for more than 25 years, declares that the physician is "all wet" and that Manush is suffering from the same trouble which laid Goose Goslin low earlier this season. This was a torn tissue and the only thing that finally cured the "Wild Goose of the Potomac" was an extended rest.

May Be Absent. Today.

If the National trainer is correct—and for the team's sake it is hoped that he is wrong in this instance—Manush will not be in the line-up tomorrow, or even for several tomorrows. As was the case with Goslin, the player will be available for pinch-hitting and can sit on the bench and give his moral support, but he will be unable to do any running without running the chance of reinjuring himself, Martin says.

Following today's mild workout, the physician told Manush that he could play tomorrow, but Heinie admitted that his leg still hurt and that he would be afraid to do any running on it, all of which would lead one to believe that Martin's diagnosis is

UPSET MARKS OPENING OF MIDATLANTIC DOUBLES

Mitchell and Yeomans Beaten

Youthful Shore and Latona Surprise in Victory.

Considine - Mangan, Gain Semifinals in Tourney.

By JACK ESPEY.

THE easy advance of Bob Considine and Tom Mangan, 1928 champions and the seeded No. 1 team, and the surprise defeat suffered by Dooly Mitchell and Edgar Yeomans, seeded No. 2, marked the opening day's competition in the Middle Atlantic championship doubles tournament yesterday on the courts of Congressional Country Club. Two rounds of matches were run off, thus moving the tourney to the semifinals which will be held today, starting at 5 p. m.

The dope stood up while Considine and Mangan were defeating Harry Hill and Fred Doyle, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3, and Alan Staubly and Sidney Wallenstein, 6—1, 6—3, 6—4, but it took a bad tumble when Mitchell and Yeomans lost to the unheralded combination of junior players, Frank Shore and Anthony Latona, 5—7, 3—6, 6—2, 6—3, 6—1.

After winning the first two sets, Mitchell and Yeomans slackened their pace, and when Shore and Latona captured the third set the favorites were unable to regain their stride. As they strove desperately to repel their younger foes they lost accuracy, and meanwhile Shore and Latona grew stronger. The fifth and decisive set was a rout with Shore and Latona making few mistakes.

Shore-Latona Star Junior Team.

Shore is the District junior singles champion, having won that honor three years in succession. His team mate is a former Western High School star.

The third seeded team of Bud Markey, former Notre Dame net ace, and Bill Seidell, of George Washington University, pulled through to the semifinals by defeating Robert Burwell and Frank Taylor, 7—5, 6—1, 2—6, 6—3, and Frank Roberts and Edward Griepenkerl, the lone out-of-town entry, hailing from Baltimore, 6—1, 6—3 6—4. The winning duo will meet Considine and Mangan in the semifinals today.

Shore and Latona will engage Owen Howenstein and Joe Rutley, veteran Middle Atlantic Team, in the other semifinal match. Howenstein and Rutley scored victories over Newby and Haney, 3—6, 7—5, 6—4, 6—1, and Elliott and Barber, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1.

Only fifteen teams competed. Herbert Shepard and Hyman Ritzenberg were forced to default to R. Winton Elliott and G. E. Barber in the first round on account of being delayed in reaching the scene.

FIRST ROUND—Bob Considine and Tom Mangan defeated Harry Hill and Fred Doyle, 6—3, 6—2, 6—3; Alan Staubley and Sidney Wallenstein defeated Samuel Herrick and Philip Herrick, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4; Frank Roberts and Edward Griepenkerl defeated John W. Dudley and Lrary Phillips, 6—3, 6—3, 4—6, 7—5; Bud Markey and William Seidell defeated Robert Burwell and Frank Taylor, 7—5, 6—1, 2—6, 6—3; Dooly Mitchell and Edgar Yeomans defeated Clarence Dawson and Hazel Burgwin, 6—3, 6—2, 6—2; Frank Shore and Anthony Latona defeated A. O. White and Pat Walker, 3—6, 4—6, 6—3, 6—1, 6—0; Owen Howenstein and Joseph Rutley defeated Robert Newby and Sidney Haney, 3—6, 7—5, 6—4, 6—1; R Winton and G. E. Barber defeated Herbert Shepard and Hyman Ritzenberg by default.

SECOND ROUND—Considine and Mangan defeated Staubley and Wallenstein, 6—1, 6—3, 6—4; Markey and Seidell defeated Roberts and Griepenkerl, 6—1, 6—3, 6—4; Shore and Latona defeated Mitchell and Yeomans, 5—7, 7—5, 6—2, 6—3, 6—1; Rutley and Howenstein defeated Elliott and Barber, 6—2, 6—2, 6—1.

partment of play from service to overhead and he was not disturbed when the ambidextrous de Stefani passed him time and again on both sides.

Harada led by 3—1 and 4—2 in the first set and then won the set at 6—2 after breaking the Italian's service twice. De Stefani made his only resolute stand during the second set, when he led at 5—1, but Harada rallied to take six straight games and the set at 7-5. Harada kept up his march, taking the first two games of the third set before the Italian could take a game. At this stage, Harada was playing tennis worthy of a Cochet or a Tilden. He varied the length of his pace on both sides of the courts and then dumped chop strokes just over the net for clean points.

JAKIE LEWIS, erstwhile Business High School star athlete, swatted the Columbia Heights Business Men's Association Nine into first place in the District Unlimited race of the Capital City League yesterday. His lusty bingle drove over the runs that gave the Heightsmen a 7-to-6 decision over the champion St. Joseph's A. C. Nine at Griffith Stadium.

Lewis' clout capped a sensational ninth-inning rally, which saw the new leaders shake off the lethargy which had gripped them through the early rounds and score five runs to bag the verdict. A large crowd of sandlot followers of the rival teams witnessed the engagement.

Heights Nine Has Half Game Lead.

The victory hoved the Heightsmen a half game in front. As the Anacostia Eagle, Burroughs A. A. and Army Medico nines also won, the clubs will start the second whirl of the wheel next Sunday well bunched near the top of the heap.

The Anacostians humbled the Foxall A. C. Team, 6 to 3, at Congress Heights, while the Burroughs Club triumphed rather easily, 16 to 6, over the Mohawks on Burroughs Field. The Woodmen of the World made a game stand before yielding, 5 to 4, to the Soldiers at Walter Reed. The Aztecs nosed out the Skinker Bros. Eagles, 8 to 7.

Jack Farrington started on the mound for the Saints against the Heightsmen with Red Rhodes as his foe. The latter got poor support from his mates in the early rounds with the result that the Saints gained a commanding lead. Working cautiously behind this advantage, Farrington kept out of danger until the ninth.

Schneider Carries Brunt of Attack.

Heany walked to open the ninth for the Heights clan and Goodman followed with a single. Keefer walked to fill the bases and when Farrington hit Shapiro in the ribs, forcing over a run, Manager Cinotti called Larry Schneider to the firing line. Kilroy grounded out, but Lee singled and Newman walked. Here, Lewis inserted his telling drive, and the champions were beaten.

Brown's home run and the pitching of Lewis and Baker featured the Medico-Woodmen contest. Five home runs added color to the Burroughs-Mohawk fray. Goodwyn's pitching and hitting aided the Anacostians to victory. Wesley and Hoffman led the Aztec assault.

JEFFERSON DISTRICT FIREMEN gained the runner-up berth in the Virginia Section race of the Capital City League yesterday at the expense of the Ballston A. C. Nine, 8 to 4, but the Bauserman Motor Co. Nine clung to its slight lead by routing the Woodlawns, 11 to 0.

Lefty Jones pitched another of his good games for the Jefferson Nine, taking things easy in the closing rounds after his mates had amassed a commanding lead for him. Harrison, although touched freely at times, held the winners in check in all but two rounds. Johnson's home run for Ballston gave the home fans momentary hopes.

McCarthy Reveals Oldtime Form.

Bernie McCarthy had his slants working to perfection against the Woodlawns, limiting the opposition to three scattered safeties, while his mates turned 10 safeties, four walks and four alien miscues into 11 runs. The winners had one big frolic in the third when they collected eight tallies, chasing Sherman from the mound.

The Bauserman and Jefferson nines are scheduled to clash next Sunday in one of the deciding games of the series.

Union Printers Defeat French A. C. Nine, 13-2

Although hit often, Roudabush kept the bingles scattered yesterday and hurled the Union Printers to a 13-to-2 victory over the French A. C. Nine at Mount Rainier. Holbrook and Simons did the timely hitting for the winners.

RESULTS of yesterday's games wrought little change in the Prince Georges County section of the Capital City League, as Berwyn forfeited to the leading Mount Rainier Nine and the Dixie Pigs and Hyattsville All-Stars both won decisively.

The Dixies triumphed over Bowie A. C., 7 to 2, while the Hyattsville Nine routed the Brentwood Hawks, 12 to 3. Berwyn was unable to muster a full squad and had to abandon its franchise by failing to put a team on the field for the second week in succession.

RAILROADS' OUTLAY HAS CUSHIONED DEPRESSION IN BUSINESS

Big Equipment Budget Cut When Carloadings Shrink

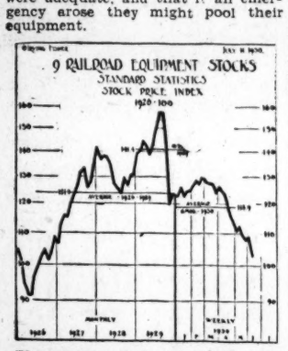
Billion Pledged for 1930 Capital Expenditures Partly to Maintain Employment Has Had to Be Reduced; Resume Orders in Fall.

By IRVING FISHER
(Professor of Economics, Yale University).

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., July 13.—The companies supplying rail road equipment are in the position of Tantalus. The railroad budgets last December made for 1930 the largest appropriations for new equipment in history. During the first quarter of 1930, for the most part, they held to their budgets. Expenditures for purchase of new equipment during the first three months were $89,000,000 compared with $38,000,000 for the corresponding period of 1929; total railroad capital expenditures amounted to $974,000,000 compared with $705,000,000 authorized for the first quarter of 1929.

So far, so good; but during the second quarter something happened. Railroad net income had dwindled. Carloadings had gone down. As a matter of fact, the figures for carloadings showed a decline, in the first three weeks of June, of 12.9 per cent from the corresponding period in 1929. It was found that equipment for carrying the reduced tonnage throughout the year was sufficient. The orders for more freight cars tapered off. The railroads began to find that they had enough interlocking and signal devices; that their loading and unloading facilities were adequate, and that if an emergency arose they might pool their equipment.



The average stock price index for the first six months of 1930 for nine railroad equipment stocks is 16 per cent below the 1929 average and 5 per cent below the average for 1926 through 1929.

President Hoover's business survey committee had been told that equipment expenditures for 1930 would run above $1,000,000,000. But that was merely an estimate. In the face of declining railroad haulage the budgets were found to be flexible.

Slump in Locomotive Orders.

There came a slump in locomotive orders, in purchases in the freight car division, in the demand for rolling stock parts, and, to some extent, in the purchases of steel rails for 1930. During the last two months railroad buying of equipment has been sharply curtailed.

Nevertheless, several railroad equipment companies are better off than in 1929, their most prosperous year. Some of the major concerns are well ahead in bookings of orders compared with corresponding periods last year, while many are holding up to the 1929 rate of earnings. It is pointed out that part of the current apathy in new buying is seasonal.

With the quickening of transportation pulses next fall, appropriations for new equipment will automatically increase, helped on by the lowered costs of supplies and increased economies in production. Equipment companies have been simplifying their capital structure, with the result that earnings are more and more applied to the shares. Moreover, they are using their excess plant capacity by adding to the lines of manufacture. The new business thus obtained has helped to reduce costs still further.

Extensive Buying of Equipment.

The big increase shown in railroad outlay during the first quarter of 1930, made largely in cooperation with the policy of President Hoover to maintain employment and business activity, probably helped cushion the business slump. It dovetailed with the policy of the railroad companies to make plant extensions and improvements during periods of recession.

On the whole, roads have done fairly well, considering the serious cuts in net operating income during the first six months, in placing and maintaining equipment, thus helping the great transportation companies to keep their plants operating. The buying power of the employes of the railroads and the equipment companies has not been reduced much, and this has a good effect on transportation as well as on business generally.

STOCK PRICE LEVEL HAS UPWARD SWING

Pessimism, However, Keeps Net Gain for Week Down to 1.5 Per Cent.

SOME RISES ARE SHARP

By H. B. BROUGHAM
(Irving Fisher Service).

Despite optimistic forecasts of business revival contained in last week's reviews, the pessimism of the stock exchange was manifest in checking any pronounced net rise in stock prices. The gain for the week in the Irving Fisher index of all industrials was 1.5 per cent, closing at 130.1, or 0.9 per cent above the high of the preceding week and 5.5 per cent over the low of 123.5 on June 24. But pessimism could not prevent a sharp day-to-day recovery from the fall of 1.9 per cent on Monday, with a rise on Thursday of 3.9 per cent. Of the 320 stocks in the selection, 44 per cent closed the week up from the preceding week's close; 20 per cent declined, while 36 per cent recorded no change.

Household products, rails, auto accessories, and motors, out of the fifteen groups, gained more than 2 per cent, and, together with foods, machinery, oils, steels, stores, and preferred stocks closed the week above their high of the preceding week by from 0.1 per cent in stores to 4.6 per cent in motors. A decline at the close of less than 2 per cent from the week ended July 3 was registered in the groups of tobacco, farm equipment, office equipment, coppers and building supplies.

Value Rises Slightly.

The average daily value of tradings in common industrial stocks on the New York Stock Exchange made but a slight recovery last week of the $57,000,000 drop for the preceding week. It rose by $1,800,000 from the record low of $68,100,000—a gain of but 2.4 per cent. All stock tradings rose from $93,500,000 in the week ending July 5 to $96,100,000 last week, a gain of 2.8 per cent.

Twelve of the 20 groups were off in trading last week, with coppers the only group to fall by more than $1,000,000. Of the eight groups that made gains, utilitites, chemicals, oils, and motors were up by from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000, and electrical equipment, building supplies, machinery and miscellaneous stocks by less than $1,000,000.

Foreign Prices Firming.

Paris stock prices rose by 2 per cent last week as Berlin and London stocks, off by 2.1 and 0.8 per cent, respectively, declined to new lows.

Foreign prices have shown a steadying tendency since the week ended June 20, with Paris stocks during three weeks of rising prices up by 9 per cent, as Berlin and London stocks, following irregular trends, fell off by 3 and 2 per cent, respectively.

During 1930, the Berlin market has shown a far steadier tendency than the other foreign markets, having registered an average weekly movement of —0.21 per cent per week over a period of 27 weeks, as compared with —0.64 per cent in London, —0.75 per cent in Paris and —0.30 per cent in New York.

All Graded Industrials Rise.

Investment stocks made the best showing in last week's market, advancing over the week, by 1.7 per cent despite a drop of 2 per cent at the opening. Semiinvestment stocks, up by 1.3 per cent, and speculative stocks, up by 1.2 per cent, did not drop off as much at the opening and were less active in the rise to the week's close than the investment stocks.

All three groups closed last week above the high in the previous week; the investment group up 0.84 per cent, semiinvestment up 0.87 per cent and speculative up 1.14 per cent, with total gains over their 1930 lows, made in the week of June 27, of 5.8, 4.9 and 5.6 per cents, respectively.

Below are shown index numbers of prices of common industrials on the New York Stock Exchange, arranged in classes derived from Moody's ratings.

COMMODITY LEVEL AGAIN SHOWS DROP

New Law Index Uncovered, Exceeding All Since Bare Year of 1926.

After two weeks of very little change, the wholesale commodity price level last week went back to its former bad manners and dropped down 1.29 per cent to a new low index since the base year of 1926. The index was 84.5, as compared with the preceding week's figure of 85.6. The per cent of decreases to the total number of individual item changes was 81, in contrast to 58 per cent the preceding week.

Last week's decline was the sharpest this year, with coal, hides, grains, cotton, flour, and oils the chief commodities going off. As a matter of fact, all of the groups dropped to new lows except hides, metals, and building materials.

As a result of the commodity slump, the purchasing power of the dollar rose by 1.4 per cent to 118.4, or nearly eighteen and a half cents more than the 1926 dollar.

Week ended—	Price index (1926 equals 100)	Index of buying power of $ (1926 equals 100 cents)
July 12	84.5	118.4
July 5	85.6	116.8
June 28	86.7	115.7
Year ago	98.0	102.0
June average	86.4	115.7
May average	88.6	112.8
1929 average	96.3	103.9
1928 average	98.2	101.8
1927 average	94.2	106.2
1926 average	100.0	100.0
1925 average	105.2	95.1
1924 average	98.9	101.1
1923 average	101.1	98.9

Foreign commodity price levels continued their upward movement last week for the third seven-day period. The sharpest rise last week was made by Germany, where the index (1926 equals 100) made a gain of 0.76 per cent. At the same time the French commodity level did well with an increase of 0.38 per cent. The English level remained where it was last week, consolidating its hard-won gains.

For the past three weeks the gains have been conspicuous. The German index has enjoyed the average weekly advance of 0.36 per cent, while the average weekly gains were for France 0.17 per cent, and for England 0.13 per cent.

Mrs. Flagler Dies; Leaves $12,000,000

Death of Divorced Wife of Standard Oil Founder Was Kept Secret.

New York, July 13 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ida A. Flagler, wealthy divorced wife of the late Henry M. Flagler, a founder of the Standard Oil Co., was buried today in Cypress Hills Cemetery, Brooklyn. Her death, which occurred on Saturday in a sanitorium to which she had been confined for the last 30 years, had been kept secret. She possessed a fortune estimated at $12,000,000.

Mrs. Flagler was divorced by her husband in 1901 on the ground that she was incurably insane. At that time he established a $1,000,000 trust fund for her, which mounted rapidly from her Standard Oil holdings.

Her principal heirs are said to be two nephews and a grand niece, George W. and William W. Taylor and Ruth E. Taylor, of Pasco, Wash. Mrs. Flagler was 82. She was the daughter of an Episcopalian minister and was married to Mr. Flagler in 1883.

PROMISED SHOWERS MAY APPEAR TODAY

Mercury Hits Unofficial 92, but Relief Looms if Rain Comes.

HUMIDITY STANDS AT 60

Though the showers promised failed to materialize yesterday, Forecaster Mitchell of the Weather Bureau said last night that they were still due and might arrive this morning. Once the showers come, he said, Washington is scheduled for at least two days of cooler weather, which will last through Tuesday.

Dripping perspiration in a humidity of 60 yesterday afternoon, Washington residents found the temperature at only 92, which is not unusual for summer in this section. The 92-degree temperature was registered on kiosk at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue and was not the strictly official record of the thermometer at the Weather Bureau.

The combination of heat and dampness drove sweltering thousands to seek the coolness of country roads, beaches and the local swimming pools. In spite of the crowding of the roads, fewer auto accidents than usual were reported.

Thundershowers which appeared promising yesterday afternoon passed the city by, however, leaving the heat situation unchanged. Northerly breezes last night brought a little relief.

Kansas City, July 13 (A.P.).—With the exception of Texas, Southwestern States, which for more than a week have sweltered in the grip of a heat wave with thermometers in some localities registering well above the century mark, today were blessed with showers and cooling breezes. In Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma the mercury fell from 10 to 20 degrees, but Texas baked in the most severe heat of the year.

Corsicana and Hemple reported 108 degrees, Fort Worth and Texarkana, 106; Dallas, 105, and Houston, 99. After establishing a new summer record of 99.8 degrees at Oklahoma City, the mercury fell 10 degrees there today following showers.

A maximum of 87.2 degrees was recorded at St. Louis, where a mark of 103 degrees was reached yesterday. Kansas, which reported readings of as high as 112 degrees yesterday, today enjoyed cooling breezes, which sent the mercury down.

CHINESE IS BEATEN AND ROBBED OF $60

Three Men Ignore Group of Persons in Assault on Laundryman.

MAKE DEATH THREATS

Ignoring a group of people who were waiting for a street car at Wisconsin avenue and O streets northwest early yesterday morning, a trio of colored men entered the laundry of Charlie Paul, 35-year-old Chinese, of 3204 O street northwest, beat him on the head with the butt end of a revolver and robbed him of $60.

Police were informed of the robbery a few minutes later when the laundryman staggered to the door of his shop and attracted the attention of a passerby. Paul was taken to the Georgetown University Hospital and treated for severe lacerations on his head.

Seventh Precinct police began an investigation that ended a few hours later in the arrest of a trio of Negro suspects. No charges have been placed against any of the three, pending a check up of their stories as to their whereabouts at the time of the assault.

The Chinese told police the men threw a sheet over his head and then struck him several blows with the gun handle. They searched an upstairs room and got the money. He said they at first declared their intention of killing him.

Thieves Balked By Dentist's Maid

Second Attempt in Month to Enter Home Foiled by Servant.

For the second time in two months thieves yesterday were frustrated in an attempt to enter the home of George A. Lilly, manager of the American Dental Trade Association. Two colored men, who tried to force entrance to the place at 1525 Forty-fourth street northwest, were frightened away by a colored maid.

Mr. Lilly and his wife and two children were attending church early yesterday when two men came to the door. Ella Brown, the maid, opened the door, and one of the men placed his foot between the door and jamb. The maid succeeded in dislodging it.

They went away, and later she saw them trying to force the door of the garage. When they were discovered they fled into the nearby woods. Two months ago an attempt was made to enter the house by forcing a window. Nothing was taken.

MARINE RESERVES ENTER FINAL WEEK

Training Period Nearing End for Capital Regiment at Quantico.

RIFLE TOURNEY AT HAND

With half of their annual training period already over, the crack Twentieth Marines Reserve Regiment from Washington now in training at Quantico, Va., can look back on a week's work with pride, and forward with expectation to their final week.

Sunday of last week was spent in erecting tents and issuing stores to the various companies. Monday was spent in brushing up the finer points on the camp and completing the sanitation system.

Tuesday the companies got into the drilling end of camp life and have been keeping at it throughout the entire week, varying battalion formations with company drills and extended order.

Out of respect to the late Maj. Gen. W. C. Neville, commandant of the Marine Corps, the regimental dance which was to have been held on Friday night was canceled, an announcement on which will be made at a later date.

Although the medical detachment has been kept fairly busy, the principal complaints have been diagnosed as sore feet and sunburn. The field hospital is prepared to take care of everything from amputation to filling teeth, a fully equipped field dental office having been put into operation.

Thursday of the past week was a half holiday with no liberty to Washington. Most of the men took part in athletic contests or went swimming while others visited buddies in adjoining companies. Liberty was issued to all that applied from Saturday noon to Sunday night at taps.

The camp is alway open to visitors and many friends of the Twentieth have already taken advantage of the opportunity to look over the crack regiment in the field. Yesterday was ladies' day and all the officers were requested to stay in camp to act as guides.

Beginning today, the entire regiment will go to the rifle range to take part in rifle practice at which time scores will be kept for qualifications as marksmen, expert riflemen and sharpshooters. The numerous cups offered by officers of the regiment for high rifle scores will also be at stake on the scores made on those days. Maj. Melvin J. Maas, better known as the flying representative from Minnesota and in command of the Third Battalion of the regiment, has been appointed range officer and is prepared to put the regiment through its paces.

TRAINING CAMPERS RELAX FOLLOWING RIGOROUS DRILLING

Outstanding Citizen in Each Company at Fort Eustis Will Get Medal.

GROUP AT FORT MONROE ASPIRES TO WEST POINT

Curtis to Review and Give Talk to Fort Washington Men Tomorrow.

The youthful student soldiers attending the various summer encampments near Washington spent yesterday chiefly in relaxing after a strenuous week of drilling.

That war in a C. M. T. C. barracks in 1930 has improved materially over war in an A. E. F. trench in 1918 is indicated by the menus served to the boys yesterday.

At Fort Hoyle, Md., for instance, luncheon included fried chicken with mashed potatoes and giblet gravy, creamed peas, celery, lettuce, sliced cold tomatoes, bread and butter, apple pie, ice cream and lemonade. And breakfast and dinner were consistent with the noon meal in variety and quantity.

Contest to Be Held.

Announcement was made yesterday at Fort Eustis, Va., that a citizenship medal will be presented with suitable ceremonies on July 26 to the candidate in each company selected as the outstanding citizen in his C. M. T. C. outfit. Character, bearing and general deportment will be considered in making the awards, and each candidate is required to submit a 500-word essay on "What My American Citizenship Means to Me."

Repeating its performance of Tuesday, Company D again won the honor streamer in the First Battalion at Fort Eustis Saturday night at the first regimental parade of the 1,900 candidates of the C. M. T. C. there. Company D comes from Philadelphia, and is commanded by Capt. W. R. Lepper, of Philadelphia, an officer of the 315th Infantry.

Curtis to Review Men.

Ninety appointees from among the enlisted personnel of all branches of the Regular Army are attending a college preparatory school being conducted by the War Department at Fort Monroe, Va., for men wishing to enter West Point. The men are to be tutored for nine months by Chaplain James L. McBride, supervising chaplain of the Fort Monroe C. M. T. C., assisted by two Regular Army officers.

Vice President Curtis will review the C. M. T. C. men at Fort Washington, Md., tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, and will address them, it was announced yesterday by Lieut. Col. C. R. Stark, jr., press relations officer of the camp.

History of Egypt Traced In Conclave of Nations

Ahmed M. Moursi, secretary of the Egyptian Legation, speaking yesterday afternoon in the weekly Conclave of Nations series from Station WMAL, said that "Modern Egypt, built on the eternal foundations of its remote history, preserves its past but keeps abreast with the present."

Mr. Moursi said the modernization of Egypt began with the nineteenth century under the leadership of the Great Khedive, Mohamed Aly, founder of the reigning dynasty. He recounted the progress achieved under the leadership of the present King Fouad, who ascended the throne in 1917. The speaker was introduced by Wallace S. Murray, chief of the division of Near Eastern affairs of the State Department.

Mr. Earl Manson, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Maude Manson, and his aunt, Mrs. Florence Abrams, have returned from a motor trip to Indianapolis, Ind., where they were guests of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Manson.

Pastor Asserts Man Craves Higher Plane

Trio of Heights in Human History Described by Rev. J. J. Rives.

Post Photo.

REV. J. J. RIVES.

Although man's physical structure is of the dust and craves the things of the earth, his spiritual being has been given life by God and yearns for a high and ennobling life, the Rev. J. J. Rives, pastor of the Francis Asbury Methodist Church South, Sixteenth and Lamont streets, declared yesterday in his morning sermon. His discourse, based on Colossians 3:2, "Set your mind on the things which are above," follows in part:

"It is said that man is the only creature who laughs and cries because he is the only one who can see the difference between things as they are and as they should be. Man is an evaluating animal, he is haunted with the ideal," the pastor said.

"The word 'above' in the text is not a term of geography. It is a word of quality. Upon the natural side we are formed of the dust and crave the things of the earth; upon the spiritual side we have been breathed into of God and yearn for the things that are high and ennobling. Life is a constant conflict between these two elements and one's achievement of character consists in a continuous reaching forth to those things which are intellectually, spiritually, and ethically high.

Three Heights in History.

"There have been three great heights in human history. The first is Mount Everest in the Himalaya range of northern India which raises its head approximately 5½ miles above the level of the sea. It stands as a perpetual challenge to the intrepid spirit of man. No human foot has yet been placed upon its summit.

"The second great height is that represented by the artistic and intellectual creations of ancient Athens. William E. Gladstone was once asked at what time in history he would have preferred to have lived. He replied, 'In the age of Pericles.' In the fifth century before Christ, Pericles as ruler together with Phidias as sculptor brought Athens to a height of unsurpassed beauty. A modern sculptor of note has said there has been no progress in art. Perfection in artistic creation was reached in the most famous of Greek states. In the civil wars of Greece Sparta put her military foot upon the neck of Athens, but no one today goes to see Sparta. Thousands of tourists each year go to Athens as a tribute of our appreciation of her contribution to human values. Athens looked up and in the teaching of her philosophers and in her creative genius in marble we shall continue to look up with her.

Humanity Finds Itself.

"The third great height was set forth in the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus Christ. He pointed us to perfection in goodness and love. Since the days of classical Athens there has been no progress in art, so since the revelation of God in Christ there has been no progress in goodness. The highest aspirations of the human heart have been realized in Him and His life and teaching have directed human thought and conduct to the one supreme 'above.' In that spiritual realm whence He came and in which He now lives, humanity completely finds itself. He has opened up clearly to our vision the one final and satisfying height.

"With these spiritual elevations before us how can we in practical life achieve them? In the first place, power which inheres in qualitative heights, reaches down and lifts us. All ideals have lifting power. A force not our own floats into us. One marvel of nature is how the moon, 240,000 miles away, helped a little by the sun, which is over 90,000,000 miles away, can put the arms of gravitation around the mighty ocean and lift its entire surface approximately 30 feet twice a day.

"Then God, who made both moon and sun, puts the spiritual arms of love and true sympathy around the human race and around each individual, and lifts us by His power into states of elevated thought and action. In the second place, there is a sense in which we lift ourselves. Better, perhaps, it may be caled our cooperation with these powers by which the lifting is made possible. The objective standards are before us with objective power available; achievement now awaits upon individual consecration and initiative.

Workers With God.

"We are workers together with God. He has the power to respond. In this connection we call attention to our concluding thought. For quite a while in the history of philosophy the theory was held that the mind of man is a purely receptive instrument. We come into this world as a blank sheet of paper, finally developing into that which has played upon us from without. Immanuel Kant taught that the structure and nature of mind makes us not merely receptive, but creative.

"Here is the turning point, and here is the genius of humanity. We not only are able to see the ideal world, but we are ourselves creators of that world. There are an outward element and an inward and personal element which, working together, bring us to perfection and peace.

"But we must keep our minds fixed. Psychology is today putting empahsis upon what it calls 'mind set.' As the body is prepared by posture and tension for a race, so the mind is set for its noblest achievement and the heart for its deepest satisfaction. 'Set your mind on the things which are above.'"

MORE THAN 200 SEE OLD BRICK CAPITOL

Movement to Save Building Launched as Visitors Throng Structure.

RAZING WORK DELAYED

A movement to rebuild the Old Brick Capital, which will shortly be torn down to make room for the new Supreme Court Building, has been started by Miss Anna C. Stannard, of 6100 Sixth street northwest.

Hechinger, Inc., the wrecking firm which has a contract to tear down the building, has agreed to defer the work until August 24, in order to give those interested in the structure a chance to see it, and to allow arrangements for the purchase of a site to hold the reconstructed building.

More than 200 persons yesterday visited the old Capital, which was used after the British burned the other capital in the War of 1812. Many of them were from out of town, and all showed a great interest in the historic structure.

An organization known as the Daughters of the Defenders of America has also shown an interest in saving the building, but has done nothing definite. Members of the group visited the building yesterday.

Among the others who viewed the old house were the two daughters of a woman who was confined in it during the Civil War, when it was used to house prisoners of war. Another Washingtonian, Capt. David C. Grayson, was also a prisoner there for several weeks until exchanged.

The old structure will be open every afternoon, and Miss Stannard will be on hand to tell the inquiring of the progress made to save a national historical landmark for posterity.

Outing to Be Held For 700 Children

100 Others Also Will Be Guests of Mission at Park Wednesday.

More than 700 children and 100 of their mothers will be guests of the Central Union Mission at an outing to be held Wednesday at Glen Echo Park. Forty of the children are from the mission's emergency home for children. Special cars have been chartered for the occasion and a box lunch for each person will be provided by the women's guild of the mission. In addition to the free tickets provided for the children by the sponsors of the frolic, the management of the park has made special arrangements to insure a good time for all.

Each year needy families, who would otherwise be unable to enjoy such a picnic, are invited to the outing by the mission, which makes its selections by year-around family visitations.

BIBLE CLASS GROUP WILL VISIT EUROPE

RETURN SET FOR AUGUST

Twenty-five members of the Organized Bible Class Association, headed by Page McK. Etchison, director of religious work of the Young Men's Christian Association, will embark from New York Wednesday on the Leviathan, bound for a tour of Europe, which will include a visit to Oberammergau to witness the Passion Play.

After viewing the country where Shakespeare was born and raised, the party will cross over to the continent and proceed to Holland. After visiting Amsterdam and The Hague, they will go to Berlin. Leaving the latter city they will arrive in Munich in time for the Wagnerian festival. The return journey will be made through Germany and includes a trip down the Cologne River. Boy, 17, Admits Story Of Kidnaping Is False

A boy who yesterday told Tenth Precinct police a story of having been kidnaped by two men, taken to Maryland and beaten, later confessed that his story was false. The boy, Mose Crymes, colored, 17 years old, of Kenyon street near Tenth street northwest, said he did not know why he told the false story.

Discrepancies in the boy's first story aroused the suspicion of Capt. Ira Sheets and Detective W. S. Smoot, who questioned him until he admitted the fabrication.

TWO MEN RESCUED AS CANOE CAPSIZES IN CHESAPEAKE BAY

Youth Bound to Canoe Saved After Friend Swims 2 Miles to Get Aid.

ACCIDENT TAKES PLACE NEAR SOLOMONS ISLAND

Speedboats and Airplane Join in Hunt for Pair From Washington.

Two Washingtonians were saved from drowning yesterday when their canoe overturned in Chesapeake Bay about 2 miles from the shore of Solomons Island, Md. One of the men, believed to be George Georges, proprietor of a fruit store at 1210 New York avenue northwest, strapped his companion to the canoe and swam the 2 miles to shore to bring aid.

The other man, whose name, according to reports from the Maryland watering place, is Underback, was rescued by Hammond Wolford, of Calvert Beach, Md., before Mr. Georges could return with a fleet of speed boats from the island. Mr. Wolford, who was cruising with Jeffro Scibles, pulled the unconscious youth from the water and applied resuscitation measures, which were successful. The rescue party constributed dry clothes so that the youth and his companion could return to Washington.

An airplane from Annapolis, piloted by Lieut. J. L. Kane, also responded to calls and flew over that section of the bay, searching for the victim. He had already been rescued, however, by the Wolford party.

The two men set out in a canoe yesterday morning. Shortly after noon, when they were about two miles off shore, the tiny craft overturned. Mr. Georges, who is said to be a good swimmer, strapped his companion to the boat and swam ashore to summon aid. Harry Woodburn, of Solomons Island, collected the speedboats and went back to the scene with Mr. Georges. Near there they met the Wolford party with the other man aboard.

Mr. Georges could not be located late last night to give further details of the capsizing and rescue. No person named Underback is listed in the city directory, although rescuers said they understood the man was employed by Mr. Georges in Washington.

Police Call Off Man's Roof Leap

Crowd Watches for Feverish Half Hour and Then Stunt Is Halted.

Figuratively speaking, Samson Green, 38-year-old Negro, of Tenth street near Q street northwest, held the center of the stage from the roof of his home last night, with a large crowd of the morbidly curious lining the streets below in expectation of the worst.

Samson continued his precarious hold on the attention of his public for a feverish half hour and then he went into a period of retirement, first behind the doors of a cell at the Second Precinct, and then in a cot at Gallinger Hospital.

Police say that Samson got himself all charged up on some enslaving liquor and proceeded to the roof of his home with some queer ideas. He announced to all that he was going to jump, and on two occasions he did start to leap, only to think better of it. A police detail under Policeman E. C. Helms, and the Fire Rescue Squad were summoned, and finally managed to persuade the Negro to come down. He was charged with intoxication and then sent to the hospital.

Couple Hurt in Crash With Hit-Run Motorist

A Washington couple was badly injured and its daughter escaped unhurt last night in an automobile accident near Plum Beach, Md., about 20 miles from the Capital. George F. Howell, 1425 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, and his wife suffered severe injuries about the head and arms when their machine rolled down an embankment.

Mr. Howell said a green roadster bearing Maryland tags cut in front of his car, striking the fender and causing his machine to roll down the hill. The occupants of the Howell car were unable to learn the license number of the other machine, which did not stop.

Cy's Cow, Bess, Sends Four City Fellers to Hospital

Special to The Washington Post.

Drury's Lane, Md., July 13.—Just thought I'd write and tell you how Cy Stokes' cow, "Bess," put one over on some of those city fellers from Washington. Up to Deacon Hendricks' store tonight one of the boys was telling us as to how "Bess" got straying into the road at 4 o'clock this morning.

Some city fellers coming lickity-split for Chesapeake Beach smacked into "Bess" and got her all riled up. The gas buggy overturned and Bess, mad as a hornet, went like all get-out into the pasture where she was still a-grazing this afternoon.

The fellers were Alfred Taylor,* 17 years old, of 724 C street northeast; William Martin, 1219 C street northeast; Howard Wolfrey, 17 years old, and Francis Haina, 17 years old, of 1413 Girard street northeast, all from up to Washington. Some other fellers took 'em to the hospital, where they got all fixed up. None of 'em was hurt as much as the cow's feelings.

Well, as I always says, when I writes something, I writes something. I hope this is another of my scoops.

Well, rowdy dow, boys, rowdy dow.
